EDITOR'S CORNER

The University of Windsor—its students, faculty, staff, alumni and friends—lost two of its finest friends and supporters late in 1963 with the death of Most Rev. John Christopher Cody, Bishop of London and chancellor of the University of Windsor, and of John M. Page, vice-president in charge of sales for H. J. Heinz Company of Canada, and chairman of the finance committee of the Board of Governors of the University. For years both have given their time and effort to assist in leading the University towards its goals. Bishop Cody was chancellor of Assumption University since 1953. Mr. Page was a member of the Essex College board of directors and chairman of the advisory committee of the School of Business Administration.

* * *

The revised Constitution of the University of Windsor Alumni Association is reproduced on Pages 13 and 14 of this issue of the Times. It will be presented to those present at the annual meeting Feb. 15 for ratification. Essentially it follows the former Assumption University of Windsor Alumni Association Constitution, but there are some changes. A second vice-president has been added to the board of directors and "active membership" has been re-defined as an alumnus who either is in contact with the alumni secretary once a year or who contributes to the Alumni Annual Fund. And there are other changes, including, of course, the new name of University of Windsor.

Homecoming '64 is being held Feb. 14 and 15. One of its main purposes is to bring alumni together once a year for a reunion. At the same time, alumni have a good opportunity to view the expansion of their University. This year's program is intended to provide a flexible variety of activities. But, as Jim Kennedy, '59, Homecoming chairman, notes, it's the alumni themselves that make Homecoming a success. Hope you will be here for Homecoming '64.

IN MEMORIAM

Three years and a decade of tremendous spiritual and physical growth in the Diocese of London under Most Rev. John Christopher Cody, Bishop of London, ended Dec. 5 when His Excellency succumbed to a heart attack in London, Ont. The sixty-three-year-old Bishop Cody was first chancellor of Assumption University of Windsor and, in July of 1963, became the first chancellor of the University of Windsor.

Bishop Cody played an important role in the history-making affiliation of the Anglican Canterbury College to the Catholic Assumption University in 1957. It was the first time in four centuries that Anglican and Catholic educational institutions were affiliated. The affiliation was a forerunner of the ecumenical spirit which was to permeate the world several years later.

Born Dec. 16, 1899, Bishop Cody was ordained to the priesthood in May, 1923, after he had obtained permission because he was six months under the age for ordination. He served several parishes in the Ottawa and Montreal regions before moving to Victoria, British Columbia, as Bishop of Victoria Diocese, in 1937. He became co-adjutor Bishop of London in 1946 and succeeded Bishop Kidd as Bishop of London in 1950.

In 1962, on the occasion of the celebration of his twenty-fifth year in the episcopacy, Bishop Cody received commendation from Pope John XXIII for his ardent zeal for souls and his extraordinary diligence. At the same time, Pope John appointed Bishop Cody to the College of Bishops Assistant at the Pontifical Throne.

At the Funeral Mass in St. Peter's Basilica, London, which was attended by twenty-six bishops, more than 40 monseignors, 250 priests, and representatives of other faiths, the provincial and local governments, and hundreds of laymen, Most Rev. Philip F. Pocock, co-adjutor Archbishop of Toronto, delivered the funeral sermon.

"The people of God in the Diocese of London are today bidding final farewell to their spiritual father," Archbishop Pocock said. "Despite ill health, he spent all of the first session and most of the second session of the Vatican Council in Rome with his brother bishops. There we came to admire still more his courage and determination, his goodness and charity and, above all, his fidelity to duty. This has been a constant mark of his episcopate. He was a churchman of the classic type.

"In the diocese of Victoria, B.C., where he became bishop in 1937, as here in London, where he became co-adjutor in 1946, succeeding Bishop Kidd thirteen years ago, he was motivated by a single purpose. He sought first the Kingdom of God and His Glory, knowing that all else would follow. This one desire was at the root of every thought and deed that proceeded from his fertile mind, his indefatigable and lucid preaching of the word of God, his ardent espousal of Catholic action in all its forms, his paternal concern for the welfare of the poor and of immigrants, his constant solicitude to deepen mutual understanding among people of every religious communion, the foundation of Christ the King College and the development of Assumption University of Windsor, the establishment of new parishes to meet the needs of an ever-growing population and the building of schools and charitable institutions."

John M. Page, vice-president in charge of sales for H. J. Heinz Company of Canada Limited and chairman of the finance committee of the Board of Governors of the University of Windsor, was one of 118 persons who lost their lives in the worst aviation disaster in Canadian history near Montreal in late November. Mr. Page, 48, was in the midst of a country-wide tour of Heinz sales offices at the time of the crash.

Born in Toronto, he had served as a student in accounts with an internationally-known firm and subsequently had become a chartered accountant. During the Second World War, he served overseas with the Royal Canadian Air Force. In 1945 he joined the Heinz company as manager of general accounting and in 1949 was appointed assistant comptroller. Six years later he was given the additional duties of secretary and in 1956 was elected to the board of directors of the company. He was appointed vice-president in charge of finance in 1960.

Mr. Page was a member of the Essex College Board of Directors until July 1 last year when Essex College merged with the new University of Windsor. He was also chairman of the advisory board of the University's School of Business Administration.

He was a member of the Chartered Accountants Association of Ontario, the Leamington Kinsmen Club, a director of the Leamington Golf Club and treasurer of the Leamington Curling Club.

He is survived by his wife, three daughters and two sons, of Leamington.

ELIZABETHAN OFFERINGS

The University Players, drawing on support from alumni and the community at large, will present Shakespeare's Hamlet March 18 through March 21 at Cleary Auditorium. The play, along with an Evening of Elizabethan Song and a second Evening of Elizabethan Prose and Poetry will be presented during the same week in commemoration of the quadricentenary of the birth of Shakespeare (1564).

Daniel P. Kelly, director, said this is the first time he has called on the community at large for support and though the turnout of actors and actresses could be better, it is heartening. "I hope this is the first of many times that actors and actresses from the community will take part in our productions," said Mr. Kelly. "It will not only mean we can have more productions in a year, but it will give the players much more experience. With luck, we could produce six plays a year eventually. The first and last plays could be almost wholly produced by community players (since many student actors and actresses are not in the city in summer to rehearse or they are busy with final examinations in the spring) with the students producing the middle plays."

Hamlet will be presented as entertainment not as an academic study, Mr. Kelly said. "When you plunk down your money at the box office, you surrender the reality in which you live for the illusion of truth of the stage. You sit in an auditorium with a lot of other people looking at actors dressed in costumes that, if you saw in the street you would laugh at, speaking a language that would not communicate if heard in everyday life. You are involved in emotions that, in all likelihood, are beyond the scope of emotions you are apt to feel in everyday life — emotions heightened by poetry. And you are entertained — or you aren't."

Among alumni in the cast will be Diana Mady, '60, as Gertrude, Norm McCallum, '59, and Jim Payne, '61.

DEPARTMENT OF THEOLOGY

Establishment of a department of theology in the faculty of arts and science has been announced by Rev. E. C. LeBel, C.S.B., president.

Undergraduate courses in Roman Catholic and Anglican theology were being given in the current academic year, Fr. LeBel said, and it was hoped that courses in United Church of Canada theology would be available next fall. The United Church was founded in 1925 as an amalgamation of major elements of the Methodist, Congregationalist and Presbyterian Churches in Canada.

Courses in the theology of other religious faiths could be offered if there were sufficient students on campus to warrant them, Fr. LeBel said. If there were insufficient students, courses could be subsidized by church-oriented groups, subject to the academic approval of the Senate of the University of Windsor.

"We are endeavouring to broaden the scope of our academic offerings in the field of theology to meet the needs of all our students in the spirit of the ecumenical movement which is capturing the hearts and the minds of men of good will throughout the world," Fr. LeBel said. "Theology is the study of the ultimate meaning of life, of man's purpose, and it has vital relevancy today."

The department of theology may establish new courses in theology considered needed or desirable, subject to academic approval by the Senate. It is expected that honours courses and post-graduate courses will be added later.

The head of the department of theology is appointed for a three-year term, renewable only once, and must be succeeded by a department head of a different denomination. Rev. Dr. L. A. McCann, C.S.B., was appointed head of the department this year.

NEW AFFILIATION AGREEMENTS

Holy Redeemer College, national seminary of the Redemptorist Fathers in Canada, and Canterbury College, the Anglican Arts college, have completed separate affiliation agreements with the University of Windsor.

Affiliated since 1956 with Assumption University, Holy Redeemer College is now an affiliate college in the faculty of arts and science with the University of Windsor. The college will continue to conduct its faculty of theology which it began at Assumption in 1959.

Canterbury College, which affiliated with Assumption University in 1957, is now affiliated with the University of Windsor and will, in addition, nominate its teachers for the inter-denominational department of theology, within the faculty of arts and science of the University.

Commenting on the affiliation of Holy Redeemer College, John J. Stuart, chairman of the board of governors of the University of Windsor, said:

"The University of Windsor is pleased and honored to accept into affiliation the first college to be affiliated with our University since Assumption University joined us in partnership upon our inauguration last July 1. This is the beginning of a broad approach which we are taking at the non-denominational University of Windsor, where we hope that religious education will be available to all students who seek it in sufficient numbers to warrant faculty and facilities."

Later, when the affiliation agreement with Canterbury College was announced, Mr. Stuart said Canterbury's faculty and students had made a significant contribution to the cultural and spiritual life on campus. He said the University of Windsor is happy to have the Anglican Community share in the opportunities and the tasks in the rapid expansion ahead.

Very Rev. Charles F. DeVine, C.Ss.R., S.S.L., is principal and chairman of the board of Holy Redeemer College. Gordon E. Hunt, of Windsor, is president of the board of directors of Canterbury College. Rev. Canon Robert S. Rayson, M.A.,

Growth In The Department of Philosophy

“New advantages have come to the Philosophy Department from the recent changeover from Assumption University of Windsor to the University of Windsor. It is possible now, with increased enrolment and greater funds, to provide greater scope to the Department’s activity, especially as regards the fields of modern, contemporary and social Philosophy.”

By Prof. Patrick F. Flood, '39
Head, Department of Philosophy

Courses in philosophy were first given at Assumption College, the institution we now know as the University of Windsor, in the year 1870. When first introduced by Father Denis O'Connor, these courses were part of a two year programme designed to prepare students for the study of theology. The purpose and the structure of this programme were ostensibly vocational. The study of classics, literature, history and language supplied the more general and educational elements of the curriculum. So it remained for three decades. The philosophy programme of these years did not differ too much from those of other institutions either partly or wholly engaged in preparing young men for the priesthood.

At the beginning of this century, however, Assumption College found it necessary to broaden its educational purpose. This was due in part to the organization of preparatory philosophy programmes in the seminaries. It then became evident that Assumption could not survive unless it was willing to answer a greater number of educational demands. This is why in 1919 Assumption College became an affiliate of Western University, now the University of Western Ontario, in London.

How did philosophy at Assumption fare under the new arrangement? Structurally there were no radical changes made. To see this one needs only to compare Assumption's offerings with those of the seminary affiliates of Western University and similar institutions of the 1920's. Though now a part of a broader curriculum and nominally departmentalized, philosophy at Assumption was carried on in much the same way as before. Specialization was a luxury the faculty could not afford. For example, in the Academic Year of 1926-1927, four names were listed as members of the Department of Philosophy. This would be most impressive if it were not for the fact that these same four names could be found in the departmental listings of at least five other departments!

Increases in student enrollment during the 1930's made specialization and stricter departmentalization inevitable. As the teaching of other subjects was taken over by other departments the Philosophy Department had more time to develop on its own. Gradually the old seminary structure of the courses gave way to a more flexible programme. Whenever possible rigid text book presentation was abandoned in favour of better pedagogical approaches. It was at this time that Father Henry S. Belisle, C.S.B. introduced students to writings of modern French philosophers like Jacques Maritain and Etienne Gilson. The irrevocable break with the seminary tradition had been definitely made. After Father Belisle's untimely death, Father E. C. Garvey, C.S.B. became head of the Department and remained in this post for more than a quarter of a century. Father Garvey continued the policies of his predecessor. During the remainder of the 1930's and during the war years the names of Maritain and Gilson dominated Assumption's philosophical scene. Just as significant during these years was the new concern with problems in practical philosophy. Windsor's burgeoning labour movement became the occasion for the philosophical discussion of social justice. The salutary effects of Father Garvey's work in this most important phase of practical philosophy continue to be recognized by those within and outside of the University.

The field of education was another of Father Garvey's major interests. The course introduced by him in the philosophy of education is now a permanent part of the undergraduate programme.

In recent years strong emphasis has been given by the philosophy department to the study of modern philosophies and the philosophers responsible for them. Intensive investigation of contemporary philosophical attitudes has revealed how important it is to know modern philosophy if the approach to the understanding and teaching of philosophy is to be successful. The best understanding of modern philosophy compels, as the case may be, either the acceptance or the rejection of the teachings and claims of its philosophers. Truth, as ever it was in the Department of Philosophy at this University, is the only worthwhile aim. But at the same time it is possible to accept too much and reject too little. The history of the Department of Philosophy can teach us this lesson.

Some of the niceties of philosophical argumentation that seemed most attractive during the 1930's have since turned out to be clearly unacceptable. This is particularly evident in theoretical philosophy. More fruitful lines of philosophical research have turned the attention of the Department to the task of purging the older traditions of alien importations. But there is a more positive result which can be discerned in the broadening and deepening knowledge of philosophy's remote and immediate past by a rigorous use of critical and historical methods.

Still much remains of the older traditions. Philosophy is a science, not a Humanity (except for convenient curricular classification). Yet the classical and literary traditions that tempered the philosophical diatribes of Assumption's early history continue to enrich the present day professor's understanding. Philosophy is not theology. Yet it would be parricidal to deny the incalculable value of the contribution made by men of deep faith who founded and continue to guide this institution. Philosophy is not history. Yet philosophy without a knowledge of its past lacks the inductive basis necessary for mature judgement.

New advantages have come to the Philosophy Department from the recent changeover from Assumption University of Windsor to the University of Windsor. It is possible now, with increased enrolment and greater funds, to provide greater scope to the Department's activity, especially as regards the fields of modern, contemporary and social Philosophy. Never before has the Department had such a wide representation of institutions of higher learning on its teaching staff. Graduates from five well known universities bring a wealth of learning hitherto impossible to obtain.

We are as hopeful for the future of the Philosophy Department as the administration is for the entire institution.

Report On the 1964-1968 Development Fund

"The campaign which the Alumni Association is undertaking this year to assist the 1964-1968 Development Fund of the University of Windsor is the most crucial task we have ever faced as alumni. Our University is now accepting greater responsibilities in education than any of us ever dreamed were possible. Our share of the total goal of $3,505,000 is $60,000 over the next five years. Our efforts to achieve that goal are vital to the continuing service of our University to the community and to the cause of education everywhere."

— Judge Lawrence A. Deziel.

"Our University is on the threshold of a new era of academic distinction and social significance. Our new University will become a beacon of excellence in the academic world. It will now be able to provide a greater service in the field of higher education. We Basilian Fathers are particularly pleased that the Board of Governors has chosen to maintain the motto: 'Teach me goodness, discipline and knowledge.' The Psalm places human goals in their proper order."

— Rev. E. C. LeBel, C.S.B.

Alumni participation in the 1964-68 University of Windsor Development Fund, seeking $3,505,000 in capital funds, has been launched.

Appointment of Judge Lawrence A. Deziel, O.B.E., Q.C., Class of '33, as chairman of the Alumni phase of the capital campaign was announced jointly by Arthur B. Weingarden, president of the University of Windsor Alumni Association, and Walter R. McGregor, Q.C., general chairman of the campaign.

At the same time, Mr. Weingarden announced the alumni board of directors decision to set the alumni goal at $60,000, with pledges over a five-year period. The board also decided to continue the Alumni Annual Fund.

"Including the Alumni Annual Fund, which will be run separately from the capital fund, alumni will be asked to give approximately $120,000 during the next five years," Mr. Weingarden said. "This is about double the amount we are now raising annually."

Mr. Weingarden said the board of directors of the Alumni Association has given Judge Deziel full backing and has left it to him to form a committee of the board to assist him in his task.

Referring to the continuation of the Alumni Annual Fund during the capital campaign, Mr. Weingarden said that while the alumni board of directors felt that the capital campaign deserved the whole-hearted support of alumni, they also felt the annual appeal for funds to provide scholarships was an important area to continue.

"Today's demands upon universities in general, and our University in particular, are tremendous," Mr. Weingarden said. "I'm certain that we, as alumni, are cognizant of these demands and are prepared to give our active support."

Judge Deziel received his elementary and secondary schooling in Windsor and was graduated from Assumption College with an honors degree in economics and political science in 1933. In 1936 he was graduated from Osgoode Hall, Toronto, with a degree of Barrister-at-law. He was appointed judge in 1963.

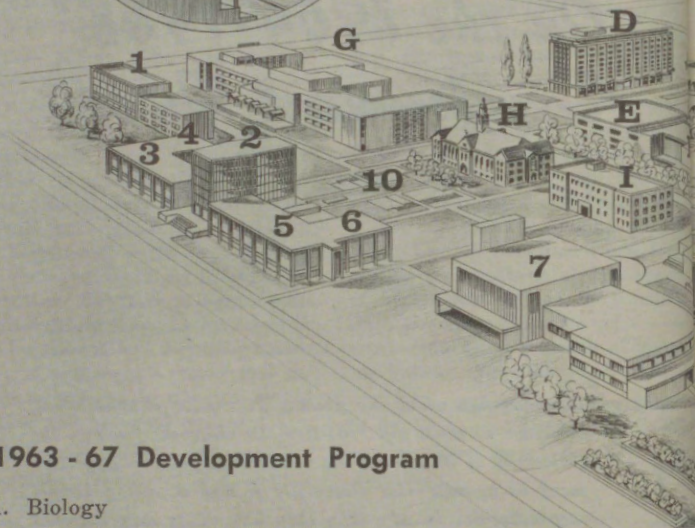

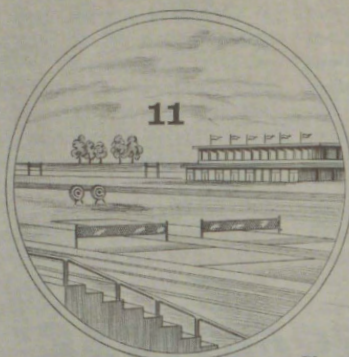

The University of Windsor has announced plans to launch a $3,505,000 appeal to the public this spring for capital funds to meet the needs of our growing University over the next five years. The $3,505,000 public subscription is part of a $22,919,000 total estimated as required to provide facilities for students, faculty and staff. The Basilian Fathers have pledged to give $2,014,000, with the remaining $17,400,000 expected from provincial and federal government grants.

Since 1956, the University spent $15,200,000 in capital expansion, including the library, the University Centre, Cody Hall men's residence and Sister Mary Electa women's residence, the first phase of the Physical and Applied Sciences building and supporting facilities. Enrolment during that seven year period increased from 580 to 1836 full-time students and from 577 to 2,049 evening and summer school students. Full-time faculty increased from 41 to 159. Forecast for the next six years indicates the necessity for tripling faculty and facilities to meet the needs of a University with a 5,000 full-time student enrolment.

Here's how the capital funds are intended to be used:

For completion in 1964, the physics and chemistry wing of the Physical and Applied Sciences building, at a cost of $3,590,000. The Physics department will be moved from its present quarters in the former City Hall annex (moved on campus in 1958). The Chemistry department, now housed in the Engineering wing of the Physical and Applied Sciences building will, when moved, provide more space for Engineering students.

For completion in 1964, an Administration building, with a separate wing occupied by classroom and staff offices for the liberal arts, business administration, graduate studies and nursing education, at a cost of $2,000,000. Present administrative offices are separated, with some in the administration building on Huron Line, built in 1875 and used partly as a residence for the Basilian Fathers, others in the Physical and Applied Sciences building. The new building will house the president, vice-president, secretary-treasurer, registrar and assistants, alumni secretary, the deans of graduate studies, theology and arts and sciences and assistants, the director of student affairs and his assistants, director of extension, the board of governors' room, Senate chamber, post office and printing plant and supplementary space to permit general administration to be conducted efficiently.

For completion in 1965, a Biology building, at a cost of $1,500,000. This building must be constructed to permit the expansion of the biological sciences, currently housed in the Memorial Science building.

For completion in 1966, a Fine Arts building and auditorium, at a cost of $1,500,000. Such a building will centralize campus activities in the fields of music, sculpture, painting and drama and will contain a small theatre and auditorium, workshops, music rooms and studios. At present, drama is being conducted in two Second World War Air Force huts brought on campus in 1947. Fine Arts is being taught beneath the basketball courts of St. Denis Hall. Music is being taught in a house which must be torn down to permit expansion.

For completion in 1966, a Graduate Studies building, at a cost of $500,000. Those pursuing graduate work are, currently, working out of residences hopelessly inadequate.

For completion in 1966, a Nursing Education building, at a cost of $400,000. The present quarters is situated in a residence which must be torn down to make room for the new Administration and classroom building. It will be moved temporarily into the Arts classroom until its building is completed.

For 1966, student residences, at a cost of $3,200,000. By 1970-71 it is expected 4,000 of the students enrolled at the University will be from outside the City of Windsor and will need some kind of living quarters. The Basilian Fathers currently operate two residences housing 600 students.

For completion in 1967, athletic buildings and athletic development, at a cost of $1,800,000. Establish-

Ford Pledges $200,000 To Development Fund

Ford Motor Company of Canada Ltd. became the first advance industrial donor to the University of Windsor's capital campaign early in January when it presented a pledge of $200,000 to campaign officials.

It is the forerunner of numerous other gifts hoped for, Lt. Col. Walter L. McGregor, Q.C., general chairman of the campaign, said. The $200,000 pledge is payable over the next five years.

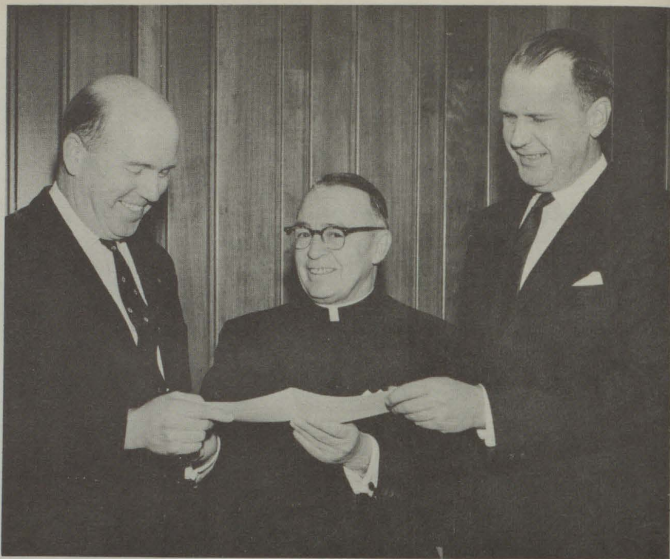

John G. W. McIntyre, general manager of Ford of Canada's manufacturing operations, who made the presentation, said the University is becoming more important each year "not only as our leading educational institution but as an employer and purchaser of goods and services."

Mr. McIntyre also said the Ford Company will contribute an equal amount to donations made by employees to the University. In addition, Ford of Canada has directed A. S. Harrison, formerly director of purchasing and recently on special assignment for the purchasing office, to devote his full-time service to the capital campaign organization.

ment of an academic course in Physical Education is planned for the near future. Both land and buildings are too limited at present for this development. To accommodate 5,000 students in their athletic and physical training activities, space and facilities must be provided as soon as possible. The "old campus" has been, for the most part, occupied by new buildings, thus removing space hitherto used for athletics.

From 1964 until 1967, supporting facilities must be purchased. These include $1,000,000 for the addition of books and periodicals to the library, $2,000,000 for the purchase of furniture and equipment for the new buildings, and $1,500,000 for both the acquisition of property and the development of the campus. During the same period of expansion, miscellaneous services such as heating, lighting and sewerage must be provided at an estimated cost of $1,500,000.

IONA COLLEGE PROPOSED

The United Church College of Essex Presbytery, which is seeking a provincial charter and affiliation with the University of Windsor, will be named Iona College after Iona Abbey, founded in 563 by St. Columba on the island of Iona off the north coast of Scotland. Negotiations for affiliation of Iona College with the University of Windsor are continuing.

The $200 bursary, to be awarded annually to an arts or science student with high academic standing and who is also actively participating in radio or dramatic activities on campus, grew out of donations sent to CBE Radio where Mr. Pavlini, '58, was an announcer prior to his death in an automobile accident last summer.

Plans Set For Homecoming '64 - Feb. 14 - 15

From as far away as New York City, alumni will be returning home Feb. 14 and 15 to attend the 1964 Annual Homecoming of the University of Windsor. An estimated 500 persons are expected to take part in the activities of Homecoming '64. More than 200 alumni have already signified their intentions to be in Windsor for the weekend.

Highlights of the weekend include reunions, the Alumni Association's Annual Dinner and Business meeting and the University of Windsor Lancers' basketball game against the University of Toronto Varsity Blues.

The Homecoming committee, under chairman Jim Kennedy, '59, has set up a program with duplicate choices of activities, including plenty of time for visiting classmates.

"We think our program provides a good setting for Homecoming '64, but it's always the returning alumni who make a Homecoming successful," Mr. Kennedy said. "Our program is planned to permit individual planning within the total framework."

Mr. Kennedy said he hoped that all alumni who intended to take part in Homecoming '64 would use the pre-registration card sent earlier this month. "We feel pre-registration will save an alumnus a lot of time when he arrives at the registration desk at Homecoming. It also helps us settle last minute details."

Alumni who have misplaced the pre-registration card sent them can pre-register by sending a note to "Homecoming '64, Alumni Office, University of Windsor, Windsor, Ontario," naming the activities for which they want tickets. General registration of $1.50 per person covers all activities except the Annual Dinner and Business meeting, tickets for which cost $3.00 per person, and the basketball game, tickets for which cost $1.75 per person. Receipts, issued when payment is sent in with pre-registration form, must be presented at the Registration desk to pick up tickets.

The Homecoming weekend begins Friday night, Feb. 14, when the student section of the Homecoming committee presents a "Las Vegas Night" in Ambassador Auditorium of University Centre. Packets of play money will be handed out to alumni and students to play the wheel, toss the dice or turn the cards.

For those feeling less ambitious, the Homecoming committee suggests a "free night of relaxation" at any spot in the city, keeping in mind that for many a visit to the "D.H." is a Homecoming must.

On Saturday at noon, Father LeBel will celebrate Mass for alumni in the extensively renovated College Chapel on the second floor off the north wing of the Administration Building.

Between 12:30 p.m. and 1:00 p.m., students will form their ranks in downtown Windsor for the beginning of the annual Homecoming parade. The parade will wend its way from near the Norton Palmer Hotel out University Ave. to the University Centre.

At 2:00 p.m. at the Windsor Arena, a team of alumni hockey players will take on the University of Windsor all-stars. At 2:30 p.m., on the courts of St. Denis Hall, a mixed team of alumni basketball stars will face a mixed team of student all-stars. At the same time, the Faculty-Alumni Lounge in University Centre will be opened for alumni wanting to sit down and visit. There will be coffee and refreshments available.

At 4:30 p.m., alumni are invited to the Sherry Party in the Faculty-Alumni Lounge. An hour or so later, alumni attending the annual dinner will be asked to be seated in Ambassador Auditorium of University Centre for the start of dinner.

On the agenda at the dinner meeting is the presentation of alumni awards to Bruce McGuire, '48, of Toronto, Gerald Nori, '53, of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and, posthumously, to John M. Page, former member of the board of directors of Essex College and the board of governors of the University of Windsor.

There will also be reports on the Alumni Annual Fund and chapter activities, the election of officers and directors to the Alumni board of directors and the voting on adoption of the revised Alumni Association Constitution. The revised constitution is reproduced on pages 13 and 14 of this issue of the Times.

At 8:30 p.m., the Lancers face the University of Toronto Varsity Blues in a regular Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association conference basketball game. The Lancers, title holders of both the O.Q.A.A. 1963 championship and the Canadian Intercollegiate Basketball championship, will be fighting to retain the former title and, thus, earn their place to compete in the second annual Canadian intercollegiate basketball tournament. Sportswriters have forecast Toronto is the team to beat to win this year's championship.

At half-time, the Homecoming Queen will be announced and crowned on the basketball floor.

Those not wishing to attend the game will find the Faculty-Alumni lounge in University Centre open, with refreshments available.

About 10:15 p.m., at the completion of the basketball game, alumni will hold their annual reunion in Ambassador Auditorium of University Centre. There will also be a dance in the cafeteria for students and alumni, free of charge to all alumni who have registered.

Tickets Limited For Fr. LeBel Fete

A testimonial dinner in honor of Rev. E. C. LeBel, C.S.B., vice-chancellor and president of the University of Windsor, is being arranged by a joint committee of representatives of the board of governors, industry, labor and civic groups.

Dr. G. Malcolm Morton, a member of the board of governors and chairman of the committee, said the dinner will be held Saturday, May 23 in Ambassador Auditorium, University Centre.

Accommodations will be limited to 500 persons, with tickets available from the Office of Information Services, University of Windsor, at $7.50 per person.

Tickets allotted to the University's alumni are limited and will be sold on a first-come, first-serve basis.

The committee has asked that alumni wishing to attend the testimonial write for tickets by May 6.

The cost of tickets include the dinner, refreshments and a presentation honoring Father LeBel.

"The committee agreed that the function should not be restricted to those immediately associated with the University but should be open, as far as possible, to the general public because of the widespread recognition of Father LeBel as an exceptional leader in our area," Dr. Morton said. "Time, space and other factors have limited our choice to Ambassador Auditorium, which has a limited capacity of 500 persons, including husbands and wives."

Dr. Morton said dress for the dinner will be informal.

A presentation will also be made to the University of Windsor of a portrait of Father LeBel in his robes of office. The portrait will be placed in the new Administration Building now under construction on campus.

Dr. James Gordon Parr, professor of metallurgy at the University of Alberta, has been appointed dean of the faculty of applied science and professor in the engineering department at the University of Windsor.

A distinguished scholar and research scientist, Dr. Parr has been editor-in-chief of the Canadian Metallurgical Quarterly and chairman of the materials sub-committee of the Canadian Standards Association.

He has been the author, or co-author, of more than seventy articles in scientific journals and publications on scientific subjects and their application to educational methods. Dr. Parr has written books on scientific subjects for public readership and has given more than one hundred radio talks relating science to society's needs.

He is the author of "Man, Metals and Modern Magic," jointly published in 1958 by the American Society for Metals and the University of Iowa Press, which Collier's Publishing Company will offer in paperback form this year.

Born in Peterborough, England, in 1927, Dr. Parr obtained his bachelor of science from the University of Leeds and his doctorate from the University of Liverpool. A Nuffield Foundation scholar in 1947 and 1951, he has taught at Leeds and Liverpool Universities, the University of British Columbia and the University of Alberta.

Dr. Parr's research activities at the University of Alberta earned more than $50,000 in research grants between 1960 and 1962. He has also been directing students seeking masters' and doctoral degrees in metallurgy.

PLEASED WITH GOVERNMENT GRANT

The Ontario government has earmarked $5,200,000 for capital expansion at the University of Windsor during the 1964-65 fiscal year. The money is in addition to a $1,575,000 grant for operating expenses during the year.

The capital grant includes $1,200,000 which the University of Windsor has agreed to pay Assumption University for purchase of physical properties on campus. The purchase, under agreement made when Assumption federated with Windsor last July 1, will be paid off over a three-year period beginning this year.

In its assistance of Ontario's fifteen provincially-aided universities, the Ontario government has proposed a total of $53,600,000 in capital grants for the fiscal year and $47,696,000 in operating grants.

John J. Stuart, chairman of the University's board of governors, said the grants appear to recognize the exceptional financial needs of the University of Windsor. "It is clear, however, that our University must seek a considerable amount of financial aid from our alumni, friends and the general public for both capital and operating costs if we are to meet our educational needs," Mr. Stuart said.

SATURDAY CLASSES

Larger enrolment and the current limitation of classroom space will force the University of Windsor to schedule more Saturday classes in the 1964-65 academic year.

The immediate problem of limited classroom space will be alleviated when construction is completed on the Administration and Classroom building, early in 1965. Construction on that building began two months ago.

DISTINGUISHED CHANCELLOR APPOINTED

Lt. Col., the Hon. John Keiller Mackay, D.S.O., V.D., Q.C., D.C.L., LL.D., who retired as lieutenant-governor of Ontario last May, has been appointed chancellor of the University of Windsor, succeeding the late Most Rev. John Christopher Cody, Bishop of London.

Col. Mackay's first official function as chancellor was the breaking of sod to begin construction on the $2,600,000 administration and classroom building opposite Dillon Hall and between Patricia Road and Sunset Avenue. Faculty, staff and members of the Board of Governors were introduced to Col. Mackay and his wife at a reception following the sod turning ceremony.

Born in Pictou County, Nova Scotia, Col. Mackay received his bachelor of arts from St. Francis Xavier University, Antigonish, N.S., and his LL.B. from Dalhousie University. He has received honorary degrees from Dalhousie, Ottawa, St. Francis Xavier, Western Ontario,

Alumni Times: Spring 1964

The Alumni Drive For the 1963-68 Development Fund

By His Honour,
Judge Lawrence A. Deziel, O.B.E., Q.C.

We have known for some time that our University was about to launch a broad appeal for funds to meet some of the costs of new facilities required for the 5,000 full-time students expected on campus by 1970.

About a month ago, the board of directors of the Alumni Association was asked how, and to what degree, the alumni might play a role in the capital campaign.

It was explained that the University needed $22,900,000 in capital funds by 1968. Of this amount, the Basilian Fathers were prepared to contribute $2,014,000; $17,400,000 was expected in government grants. And the remaining $3,505,000 must be obtained by public subscriptions, hopefully over a five-year period.

It was also recommended to the board that the Alumni Annual Fund for scholarships would be continued in addition to any capital fund-raising, and with this viewpoint the board wholly agreed. The need for scholarships is growing rather than lessening.

It was obvious to your board that the Alumni must take an active leadership role in the capital fund campaign. Corporations, business firms, foundations, local governments and the general public would look to the alumni for such leadership as an expression of faith and loyalty to Alma Mater, and as an example to thousands of donors not as directly connected as we are to the University.

In recent years, the Alumni Annual Fund has provided almost $10,000 a year for scholarships. Even discounting any growth in this fund — which we should expect as the number of alumni continues to grow — this would amount to $50,000 over the next five years.

Your board then decided that a reasonable target for us to seek from alumni in capital funds over the next few years would be $60,000 — making a total contribution from the alumni over the five-year period of $110,000.

Your board also decided that it would make it easier for all alumni to make substantial gifts to the capital campaign — and to the continuing annual fund — if gifts to the capital fund were pledged over a five-year period, or for those who preferred a shorter period, over the next three years.

I was asked to serve as chairman of the Alumni capital fund campaign, which I have undertaken gladly and with very earnest enthusiasm. I am fully aware, as all of you are, of the great debt of gratitude, which we owe to Alma Mater.

All of us have a special feeling of gratitude to the Basilian Fathers for their leadership and services on this campus over the last century, and perhaps especially for their continuing contribution as teachers, counsellors and administrators in the new University of Windsor.

We cannot help but be proud of the enormous strides which have been made on campus in recent years — the tripling of enrolment, of faculty and of facilities; the great advances which have been made academically.

Our alumni numbers have grown by one-third since the last capital fund campaign in 1956. All of us remember with affection and pride the elements of learning, of understanding and of social maturity which we gleaned during our days on campus, and many of us have continued to glean in continuing contact with the University over the years.

Now we have a special opportunity — and a profound obligation — to express our gratitude in a tangible way, and with a generous heart.

This is a campaign to raise funds urgently needed to help Alma Mater.

But we will succeed only if each of us undertakes our individual task as if it was "an affair of the heart" — with a warmth of enthusiasm and eagerness and generosity which will spur others to match our generosity.

Homecoming '64: Annual Report

Rev. E. C. LeBel, C.S.B., retiring president of the University of Windsor, offers his congratulations to Bruce E. McGuire, '48, of Toronto, and Gerald E. Nori, '53, (right) of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., after presenting them with Alumni Awards at the Annual Meeting of the University of Windsor Alumni Association.

Two alumni and a former member of the University's Board of Governors were honored by more than 470 alumni attending Homecoming '64 at the University February 14 and 15.

Alumni Awards, symbolic of dedication and service on behalf of the University, were presented to Bruce E. McGuire, class of 1948, Gerald E. Nori, class of 1953, and John M. Page, former member of the Board of Governors, who was killed in an aeroplane crash near Montreal last November.

Mr. McGuire, who received his elementary schooling at Schomberg Public School and his secondary education at Aurora High School, was a member of the debating, history, philosophy and boxing clubs while an undergraduate at Assumption College. He later graduated from Osgoode Hall, Toronto, and now practises law in Toronto. He married the former Margaret O'Leary in 1948 and they now have five children. Mr. McGuire is a former president, and, for some years executive member, of the Toronto alumni chapter and continues to contribute his time and services to alumni activities.

Mr. Nori, born in Sault Ste. Marie, attended Sacred Heart School, Sault Ste. Marie, and St. Michael's College, Toronto, before enrolling at Assumption. He was a member of the Students' Council, a member of the yearbook staff and the drama club while an undergraduate. Upon graduation in 1953, he entered Osgoode Hall and now is a partner in the law firm of Wishart, Noble and Nori. In 1959 he married his wife, Barbara, and they now have two children. Mr. Nori has been president and organizer of the Sault Ste. Marie alumni since his return from Osgoode Hall.

John MacPherson Page, C.A., vice-president-finance and secretary of the H. J. Heinz Co., Leamington, was a member of the University of Windsor Board of Governors and a member, until its merger with the University of Windsor, of the board of directors, Essex College. As a member of the Board of Governors, he was chairman of the finance committee. As a member of the former board of directors of Essex College, he was a member of the advisory committee for the School of Business Administration.

Rev. E. C. LeBel, C.S.B., vice-chancellor and president of the University, who made the Alumni Awards, said of Mr. Page: "He gave unstintingly of his personal services and time to our University until his untimely and tragic death in an aeroplane crash near Montreal in November when he was only forty-eight years of age. In appreciation for his untiring efforts to assist the University, the Alumni Association of the University, in pride and sorrow, bestow, posthumously, its 1964 Alumni Award."

Arthur B. Weingarden, class of 1954, president of the Alumni Association, was re-elected president for 1964. Francis J. Chauvin, class of 1939, was elected first vice-president; Allan T. J. Roach, class of 1946, former board director, was elected second vice-president; and Miss Patricia McManus, class of 1957, James Kennedy, class of 1959, and Paul Gilmor, class of 1961, were elected directors. The presidential and vice-presidential terms are for one year while the three directors are elected for a three-year term.

Mr. Weingarden, in his annual report of the board, said the board met six times during the year to conduct alumni business which included revision of the Alumni Constitution (the revised Constitution was passed at the annual meeting at Homecoming), appointments of Board of Governors and Senate representatives and alumni committee heads, allocation of $500.00 for the Sister Mary Electa Bursary and an academic scholarship for a student who is also active in co-curricular activities.

Senior Class Holds Annual Banquet

The University's largest graduating class held its Annual Senior Class Banquet in the Rendezvous Tavern, Riverside, in March with about 400 of the prospective 550 graduates attending.

More than 490 seniors are hopeful graduates this May 30 as the University of Windsor holds its First Convocation. The graduating class, including the October graduates, contains more than 75 post-graduate students.

Frank Montello, graduate of the class of 1948, and a Windsor lawyer, was guest speaker at the banquet. In photo at bottom left, from the left, are: Tom Gordon, senior student; Mrs. Frank Montello; Mr. Montello; and Robert DeMers, chairman and organizer of the Senior Class banquet.

Finding adequate facilities in which to hold the traditional dinner proved the most difficult problem for the organizers.

"I don't know what future classes will do," said Bob DeMers. "Three years from now they'll probably have to stage the annual dinner by faculties."

It is estimated that of the 2,200 students expected to attend the University next year, more than 600 will be prospective graduates. By 1970, enrolment at the University is expected to total about 5,000.

Dr. Duncan McLarty, past president of the C.I.A.U. and Rev. W. P. McGee congratulate coach Bob Samaras.

It was another great year for the University of Windsor Lancers.

Their box score of accomplishments for the 1963-64 college basketball season reads like this:

—A second straight Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association championship.

—A second straight Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union championship.

—Twelve consecutive victories over league opponents, thus extending their winning streak to 22 games, just two wins short of the all-time conference record now held by the University of Western Ontario Mustangs.

In addition, Bob Samaras's scintillating basketballers have recorded 26 consecutive victories over Canadian college opponents in competition dating back to the start of the 1962-63 campaign.

This is certainly a golden era for basketball at the University of Windsor. Since Samaras took over the leadership of the Lancers in the fall of 1962, they've won 44 games and lost eight. One-half of those defeats have been inflicted by the University of Detroit Titans, one of the premium opponents on the Lancers' annual schedule.

Samaras vows to topple the Titans "one of these years" but few of the University of Windsor boosters will even give a care as long as the Lancers continue to dominate their conference play and rank high among the college cage quintets from all across Canada.

In retaining their O.Q.A.A. and C.I.A.U. basketball titles, the Lancers overwhelmed all opposition in sight with hardly working up a sweat. In contrast to last year when they were extended in many a game, including the national championship game against Acadia University Axemen, the Lancers breezed through this past season in sort of a ho-hum manner.

The 1962-63 edition of the Lancers was a great team. This year's Lancers were even greater.

They had talent, depth and balance, spirit and confidence. They were well-coached.

It was a veteran-packed squad which Samaras assembled at St.

Denis Hall last October to commence training sessions. Bill Brown, Bernie Friesmuth, Joe Green, Bill Hassett, Tom Henderson, Bob Horvath and Ed Petryshyn were experienced hold-overs.

Angelo Mazzuchin, a sophomore from Sudbury St. Charles High School, stepped into a Samaras system almost immediately. Bob Billand, Doug Kane, Norb Keller and Claude MacMillan provided the 12-man Lancer squad with a sound bench.

When Kane and MacMillan were dropped from the squad at mid-season so that they could pick up their academic standing, Gerry Horner, a freshman from W. F. Herman Collegiate, moved up from the U. of W.'s intermediate team, the Crusaders, and played an important role in the Lancers' twin title conquests.

In their dressing room after clinching their second straight C.I.A.U. championship, Lancers show their joy for photographer. Basketball Title Windsor opened its 1963-64 schedule by playing a conference game against the McMaster University Marauders and prevailed by a convincing 102-72 score.

Eight exhibition games followed before the Christmas holiday break. After dropping back-to-back road games to Detroit and Adrian (Mich.) College, the Lancers struck back for successive triumphs over Aquinas College and Detroit Tech.

Their record was a so-so 3-3 after losing to Iona College but a 10-game winning streak got them rolling towards a second straight conference championship and the opportunity to play off again for the Dominion title laurels.

The Lancers were 6-3 at Christmas and opened the 1964 portion of their schedule by entertaining Queen's University in their second conference contest. The Golden Gaels fell by a 97-45 score.

Windsor's first crucial league assignment came on Jan. 17 when the Lancers faced the University of Toronto Varsity Blues at Hart House. This is traditionally a tough ball game for the Lancers and the Blues, with title aspirations of their own, managed to match strides with Samaras' squad through the first 20 minutes.

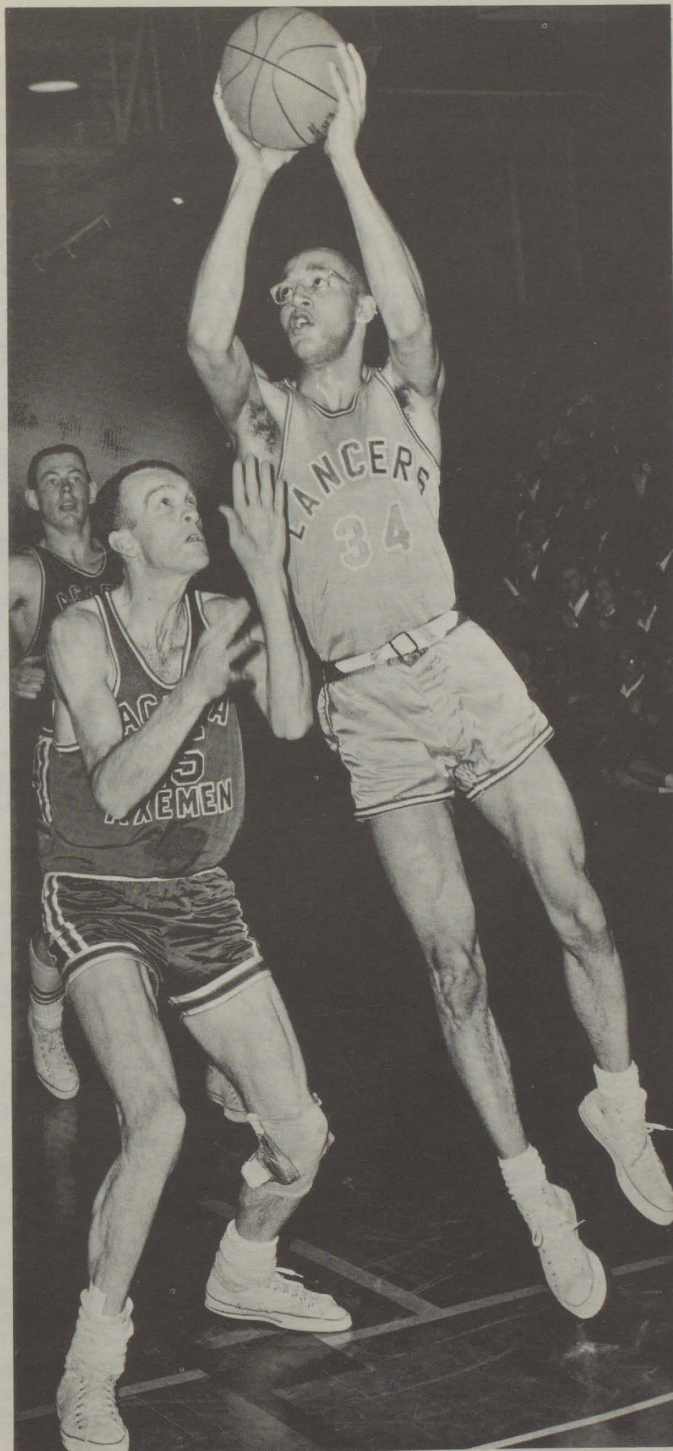

The second half was dominated by a poised and confident Lancers, however, and they posted a convincing 88-79 victory over the Varsity crew.

After that, the Lancers crushed McMaster for the second time, avenged their earlier loss to Adrian in a non-conference start and established themselves as "the team to beat" in the conference by blasting the University of Western Ontario Mustangs, 107-64, and University of Waterloo Warriors, 107-81, in successive home-court appearances.

By this stage in the campaign, Windsor was 6-0 in league play and the other would-be title contenders (Western, Waterloo and Toronto) were helping the Lancer cause by knocking each other off. McMaster pulled off a key victory over Western and Queen's came along with an upset win over Toronto.

The Lancers' 10-game winning streak was ended by Detroit, 101-82, but there

A Look at Modern Education

By Rev. E. C. LeBel, C.S.B.

"The discarded notion of some modern educators that freedom is simply freedom of choice is far too narrow and necessarily leads to an exaggerated concept of the freedom which should be accorded students."

The progressive developments of modern education have been great, but unfortunately and almost inevitably, the tendency towards an exclusive interest in one type of knowledge characteristic of former cultural periods has been replaced in our own by an almost exclusive interest in science. A materialistic concept of the universe, of man, of the nature of human knowledge and human motivation has distorted modern educational insights, which in an integral setting would be of great value.

For many years, integration in education has been a popular slogan. For Christian educators the simple truth is that there cannot be integration without knowledge of the fundamental truths of reality. Only truth will free man — integration without truth is a contradiction. A scientism which finds no room for God and little room for the classical tradition can lead only to frustration and a seeking of final purpose where it cannot be found. The feverish substitution of the social sciences for an integrating wisdom stemming from religion and the humanities is surely for Christians a sorry commentary on the plight of modern scientism.

Happily there are indications on every side that the world is ready for something positive. It is tired of the negations of those who would restrict the range of reason to the cataloguing of the findings of experimental science or the mathematical deciphering of the physical order. It would seem that great numbers are now ready to undertake a task of reconciliation and assimilation, to undertake the work of putting together in their proper order the values of Christian revelation, classical humanism and modern science.

Of first importance is the truth that a human being has a right to an education for his own humanity.

Man, unlike lower beings, is a person. The education of man should not, therefore, be an education primarily for something other than himself; adjustment to society, special and vocational skills. All of this is important, but must always remain second in importance.

The direct task of education is the freeing of man so that he may know. It is not simply the freeing of man so that he may know this or that particular truth, but truth in all its amplitude, the truth of science, philosophy and theology. Human spontaneity reaches further than any environmental and social adaptability. It is a spontaneity reaching out for truth, beauty and goodness in every sphere.

In this work of freeing himself, of becoming an integrated personality through seeing meaning and purpose, we cannot overlook the indispensable guiding role of the teacher. As far as advancing in the various disciplines is concerned, the student can do much for himself. But the unity, the relative significance of all facets of knowledge, the overall vision — what Plato calls the vision of greatness — must largely be the result of the vision and wisdom of the teacher. It is the teacher's philosophy and theology of life which is the persuasive integrating influence.

The unified and unifying wisdom of the teacher is necessary, we might say especially necessary, on the lower levels of education before specialization is started in the university. Here we are not thinking of the question of literacy, learning to read or write. These are important, but important only as tools of education. The ability to give vision, meaning and unity is the very soul of teaching and makes it alive and buoyant. The teacher initiates students into the intellectual, spiritual and social inheritance of our community.

Since the teacher is a guide aiding students in the progressive realization of their freedom, he must be aware of the scope and the possibilities of human freedom.

The discarded notion of some modern educators that freedom is simply freedom of choice is far too narrow and necessarily leads to an exaggerated concept of the freedom which should be accorded students.

Freedom of choice is important, and has its rights, but more fundamentally a human being is free to the extent that his acts of knowing the true and loving the good are his own acts. The freedom is as wide as the true and the good; thus understood, it has nothing to do with freedom of choice, but much more with spontaneous outreachings of the human soul to truth, goodness and beauty. In awakening the students to the possibilities of freedom, teachers are exercising a noble art, an art which develops free men.

In pre-University education the student is in the process of working through his dawning rationality, a process of gradually achieving the proper human relation of imagination to intelligence. In this period intelligence must to a great extent be reached through the senses and the emotions, through the experimental and poetic functions of the intellect.

This indicates a special role of literature, history and the arts in this period of basic liberal education. The beautiful, while maintaining its own appeal, functions at this time also as a vehicle of the true. To help and not hinder students in reading literature for beauty and truth requires a pedagogic art of high order.

Those who appreciate the educational value of literature will insist on a wealth of literary materials, on having available not only our great English literature, but also the translated classics of Greek and Rome and the religious classics of our Judaeo-Christian tradition. By means of literature, students will develop an enthusiasm for ideas, they will be exalted in the joy of knowing and the joy of beauty. A habit of reading books, and especially the habit of reading books which contain great literature, literature which makes us aware of the height and depth of life, will always be a primary educational medium.

University education as its name implies, should be a place of universal knowledge. But university education is also the period of specialization. Unity — Specialization. There will always be a tension between these two demands. In a university without philosophy there is no tension because there is no unity. Philosophy is declared dead, and in its place we have its history, or its obituary. Such a university becomes a hive of "isms"

— a multi-versity. Physicism (physics masquerading as philosophy), socialism, economism, psychologism, each runs its own way. Scholarship burrows further and further into separate corners.

This dispersion does not result from allowing each science its proper scope, but from a failure to recognize the hierarchy of the sciences. Philosophy, which deals with the basic principles of all reality, should have the function of ordering and unifying the sciences; the opportunity for an ordered unification of knowledge is greater now than ever before. We in the modern world possess highly developed special sciences — biology, physics, mathematics. As we move out of an age of scientism and restore philosophy to its proper place, the sciences will be prevented from degenerating into pseudo-philosophies, into "isms". Their contributions to an integrated wisdom will be extremely valuable.

When, in our new age, the wisdom of Christian theology and philosophy makes itself felt in the university, the student will not be the mere specialist, but the specialist who understands how his speciality fits within his wisdom. And society will look to universities for a rational justification of man's spontaneous certitudes. The dignity and freedom of man, the basis of democracy, will be elaborated in its necessary dependence on the truth of God's existence. At present, the effect of the universities is often to leave people with neither common-sense intuitions nor philosophy. Society gets, not leadership, but confusion.

This situation is entirely unnecessary. In our new age when the modern genius for experimental science, the Greek genius for philosophy, the Christian genius for theology offer us their fruits, we are ready for an integral education, an education enriched by science, unified by philosophy, inspired by theology. We are ready for schools guided by teachers with an integrating wisdom and for universities which conduct their specialized studies in a context of wisdom. Our new age will be an age of synthesis.

was no stopping the Windsor warriors en route to their league championship. They skipped past Queen's and McGill on the road and clinched the crown by beating Toronto and McGill at home.

Hillsdale, the third Michigan quintet to turn the trick, handed Windsor its fifth defeat of the season in an exhibition game at Hillsdale. The Lancers, with their league honors already wrapped up, closed out their conference schedule on the road against Waterloo and Western.

They nipped the Warriors, 79-76, and clipped the Mustangs, 86-73, to climax their second straight undefeated season in O.Q.A.A. play and qualify for the second annual C.I. A.U. championships at St. Denis Hall.

The Lancers whipped Acadia, 107-69, and toppled University of British Columbia, 94-70, to remain unchallenged as the best college basketball team in Canada.

The ease with which the Lancers survived this four-team national tournament left little doubt about their superiority over all the other inter-collegiate athletic association champions in the country. And, the immediate future of the Lancers is bright and rosy.

Petryshyn, Brown and Henderson, due to graduate this June, will be the only departing members of the Lancer cast. Forming the nucleus of Samaras' 1964-65 quintet will be Friesmuth, Green, Hassett, Horvath and Mazzuchin. Horner, Billand, Keller, Kane and MacMillan figure to bid for spots on next season's squad along with Crusader graduates Joe Bardswich, Mike Gloster, John Upham, Marty Kwaitkowski and Mike Taranczuk.

And because of Samaras' recent successes, Windsor is certain to attract a fine crop of freshmen material from both sides of the border.

The Lancers, as the Kings of college basketball, might well remain on the throne for a few more years to come.

Rae Graham Appointed Annual Fund Chairman

Mr. Graham

Rae A. Graham, class of 1957, has been appointed general chairman of the 1964 Alumni Fund. He succeeds Robert K. Little, class of 1950, who has been general chairman of the fund for the last two years.

"I consider it an honor to accept the appointment of the board of directors of the Alumni Association and I hope I can live up to the expectations of the board members," Mr. Graham said. "This year's annual campaign will be especially challenging, coming as it does on the heels of the University's capital campaign for building funds."

Mr. McAllister

"I am confident, though, that those of us who have supported the annual fund in the past will continue to do so. And it is my hope that this year's campaign will be successful in the area of those alumni who have not yet given to the alumni annual appeal."

Mr. Nicol

"The Alumni Annual Fund is the special pet project of the Alumni Association and, with the approval of the University's Board of Governors, the monies raised are used to provide scholarships for deserving students attending our University. I think that no better use of our money can be made than that it help deserving students to attend the University of Windsor.

Mr. Schiller

"In the few years we have held our annual campaign, the alumni have assisted in helping more than one hundred students attend University. I think this record in itself stands as a tribute to those alumni who have supported the annual fund. It also shows that the area of scholarships is an area where our funds are well needed."

Other members of the 1964 Alumni Annual Fund committee are: Miss Patricia Lewis, '52; Jim McAllister, '58; Jack Nicol, '45; Joseph Schiller, '49; and Bill Viveash, '44.

500 Pay Tribute At Farewell Dinner

By Jerry Hames

A pillar and a source of inspiration . . .

These words were only a few among the numerous testimonials extended a man who had led Assumption University and later the University of Windsor to its present achievement since assuming the presidency in 1953.

More than 500 persons representing university faculty, alumni and students, friends and colleagues and Windsor and suburban officials filled the Ambassador Room of the University Centre one Saturday night in May and for three hours talked to and of Rev. Eugene Carlisle LeBel, C.S.B., C.D., M.A., LL.D.

Five weeks after that night, Father LeBel boarded a plane at Windsor Airport for a vacation in eastern Canada before travelling to the University of British Columbia to assume the post of principal and superior of St. Mark's College. His responsibility there, free from academic duties, will be concerned with the religious and social life of the men and women housed in the two St. Mark's residences.

A long and impressive line of speakers rose to pay tribute to the outgoing president, climaxed by an address by Canada's minister of external affairs, Hon. Paul Martin.

"Father LeBel has been a pillar and source of inspiration in this university and community in developing the range of moral commitments, while at the same time he has remained true to both the spirit of a free university and to the traditions and heritage of the Basilian Fathers," Mr. Martin said.

He said the high standard of civilized conduct emanating from the university would forever be a mark of the university and a monument of unity.

"We live in a contracting interdependent world—a world of revolutionary change in which old standards and values are continually being challenged. I doubt that there has ever been a time in history when there was more need for the whole range of moral commitments, virtue, conscience, humility and faith to be vibrant living forces in our communities.

"I am certain it is possible for a true university to both reflect these commitments and nurture them in its members while maintaining complete freedom and independence."

Mr. Martin quoted Cardinal Newman's "The Idea of a University," written in 1852:

"Quarry the granite rock with razors, or moor the vessel with a thread of silk; then may you hope with such keen and delicate instruments as human knowledge and human reason to contend against those giants, the pride and passion of man."

Father LeBel, in reply to tribute paid him, said the past accomplishments of Assumption University and the University of Windsor had been the results of team effort. He praised the citizens of Windsor for their actions and deliberations to support the University's growth.

He stressed the need for humility during this period of time, when "so many bask in the sun of others' achievements." Despite this day and age when men are proud, there are only a few who have achieved much," he said.

"We must learn to keep pace in the realm of human nature as well as in the realm of science."

Other testimonials came from Dr. Frank A. DeMarco, vice-president, on behalf of the faculty and staff; Marten Brodsky (Class of '65), representing the students; Arthur Weingarden (Class of '54), president of the alumni association; Mrs. W. R. Campbell, first president of the women's auxiliary, and Walter Dunne (Class of '18), president of the Friends of Assumption Foundation Inc.

The name of Father LeBel, if precedence holds true, will long be remembered and held in esteem by alumni and persons in Windsor and Essex County.

Dr. J. Francis Leddy, in his first press conference since assuming the presidency of the university this month, remarked that Father LeBel's name is often mentioned and his whereabouts asked by the people of Saskatoon.

Father LeBel was professor of English and coach of the football team at Sir Thomas More College for two years before coming to Assumption College in 1941.

During that time he became acquainted with Dr. Leddy who will be installed as second president in the University of Windsor's brief history at a special convocation on September 26.

Since 1941, when only three major buildings stood on the university campus, Father LeBel has participated in the growth of the university to its present expanding campus today. During those 23 years he has helped to create in the University of Windsor an institution which combines a spirit of independence with deep integrity, one immeasurably strengthened by the diverse religious backgrounds which have come together in a true sense of ecumenicity.

Mr. Hames, who received his bachelor of arts degree from the University of Windsor this spring, is education reporter for The Windsor Star and a former editor of the University's student newspaper, The Lance.

Many students have known and loved Father LeBel, since he came to Assumption College in 1941 as head of the English department. These two photos were taken from the files of The Windsor Star. At left, Father LeBel, as vice-president of the College in 1947, poses with students during fall registration. From left: Joseph Gribben, Conrad Swan, George Morissette, and John Francis Ware. The photo at right was taken in March of 1954 when students presented a portrait of Father LeBel commemorating his appointment as the first president of the newly incorporated Assumption University. From left: Father LeBel, (Mrs.) Margaret Richardson (Masterson), then president of Holy Names undergraduate Association; Joseph Comuzzi, then president of the students' council; Richard W. Keeley, member of the University's Senate.

Lt. Col., the Hon. J. Keiller Mackay, former lieutenant-governor of Ontario, was installed as chancellor of the University of Windsor at the University's first Convocation May 30. From left: Dr. F. A. DeMarco, vice-president of the University; Col. Mackay, who is receiving the robes of office; Rev. E. C. LeBel, C.S.B., president; and H. Clifford Hatch, vice-chairman of the Board of Governors.

Honorary degrees were conferred on Brother Roger Philip, Ph.D., former head of the psychology department at Assumption, and Dr. John J. Deutsch, chairman of the economic council of Canada. From left: Brother Philip, Dr. F.T. Kingston, beadle, and Lt. Col. Mackay.

Five doctorate degrees were conferred, bringing to seven the number of Ph.D.'s granted by either Assumption or the University of Windsor. From left: W. A. Redmond, Ralph Jobin, Joseph M. Prokipeak, David Ping-Chi Fung, and Mrs. Sandra Yuen-Shun Ing. All five received doctorate degrees in chemistry.

U. of W.'s First Convocation

Degrees, diplomas and certificates were conferred on 415 graduates at the Convocation of the University of Windsor May 30.

Highlighting the Convocation was the installation of Lt. Col., the Hon. J. Keiller Mackay, former lieutenant governor of Ontario, as chancellor of the University of Windsor. Col. Mackay succeeded the late Most Rev. John C. Cody, Bishop of London, who died last December. No sooner had Col. Mackay donned his robes of office than he conferred degrees, diplomas and certificates on the largest graduating class in the history of either the University of Windsor or Assumption University. The class of 1964 represented an increase of almost 20 per cent over the class of 1963. It included five doctoral degrees, all in chemistry, bringing to seven the number of doctorates conferred by either Assumption or the University of Windsor.

Honorary doctor of law degrees were conferred on Dr. John J. Deutsch, chairman of the Economic Council of Canada and former vice-principal of Queen's University, Kingston, and Brother Roger Philip, Ph.D., F.S.C., professor emeritus of Assumption University since his retirement in 1962 as head of the psychology department. Dr. Deutsch gave the Convocation address.

It was the first Convocation since Assumption University federated with the University of Windsor. It was also the last Convocation for Rev. E. C. LeBel, C.S.B., as president of the University of Windsor. Father LeBel completed his term of office June 30 and, following a vacation, becomes principal and superior of St. Mark's College, on the University of British Columbia campus.

Prior to the ceremonies, separate baccalaureate services were held for Roman Catholic, Anglican and United Church graduates and their families.

Of the undergraduates receiving degrees, 177 were from Windsor, 35 from other parts of Essex County, 110 from other communities in Ontario, 21 from other Canadian provinces, and 40 from 11 other countries.

The Governor General's Silver Medal, symbolic of highest academic achievement, was awarded to Francis William Lemire, of Sandwich West Township. A mathematics student, Mr. Lemire also received the University Board of Governors Medal for mathematics. First recipient of the President LeBel Award for high academic achievement was Miss Melanie Ann Cynthia Lind, a history student, who also received the Board of Governors Medal for history.

An important message to parents who want to send their children to university

Bank of Commerce offers a special long-term EDUCATION LOAN

The reason so many people are denied higher education is quite often a financial one. We at the Bank of Commerce realize that the cost of attending University has increased sharply over the past few years...

THUS WE ARE PLEASED TO OFFER THE BANK OF COMMERCE EDUCATION LOAN. This plan allows you to borrow an amount up to 80% of the four basic educational expenses—tuition, books, room and board and travel. When students take long courses, the total loan amount may be as high as $8,000. Repayments are arranged through a flexible system of low monthly instalments of principal and interest. The period of repayment may extend up to two years longer than the length of the course. Some repayment periods may be as long as eight years.

This Bank of Commerce Education Loan Plan is designed to help you help your child's future.

FREE BOOKLET: For information about the plan, call in at your nearest Commerce branch for the free booklet "Education Loan Plan" or write to 25 King Street West, Toronto 1, Ontario.

University Receives Coat-of-Arms

The charter granting the coat-of-arms to the University of Windsor was the first in history to use the style and title of Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth of Canada and to place Her Royal Arms of Canada in the centre of the heading of the letters patent. Previously, Letters Patent for armorial bearings, have borne the Royal Arms of British sovereigns as monarchs of Britain.

The departure in procedure, which was recently approved by Queen Elizabeth and is now available for other applicants in Canada, was initiated by Dr. Conrad Swan, Rouge Dragon Pursuivant of Arms, former student and professor at Assumption University and the first Canadian to be appointed an officer of Arms and Member of the Royal Household. Dr. Swan prepared the application for the coat-of-arms by the University. Gold and blue, the colors of the University of Windsor which officially assumed responsibility for the 107-year-old academic institution July 1, 1963, predominate in the new armorial bearings. Gold and green had been the colors of Essex College, which was absorbed by the new university, and blue, gold and white are the colors of Assumption University, which is now federated with the University of Windsor.

The Shield of Arms consists of a gold background on which are three piles, or wedge-shaped heraldic charges, two descending from the top of the shield and the third rising between them from the base. In heraldry, piles are symbolic of the Passion Nails of Christ and emphasize the Christian origin of the university, as well as the arduous nature of academic endeavor.

Each pile carries an armorial charge: the upper two a Maple Leaf and Fleur-de-Lis, both gold, alluding to the historic origin of the seat of the university (L'Assomption) and also the present nationality; the lower pile is charged with a silver lily with gold wings, a device taken from the arms of Assumption University which preceded the new university.

Over the whole of the shield stretches a symbolic bridge with twin allusions to the location of the university at the Canadian base of the Ambassador Bridge linking Canada and the United States, Windsor and Detroit, and to the principal aims of the university—to bridge the chasms of ignorance and join the firm grounds of truth.

Above the shield is the Helm of the corporation, a closed steel vizor linked with red silk. From the Helm rises the Crest, consisting of a Black Greek Cross recalling the association of the Basilian Fathers (the Congregation of St. Basil) with Assumption almost since its founding in 1857.

The Cross stands in front of two red Seaxes, or notched swords, as a cant (or pun) on Essex, the county in which the university is located. The composition is irradiated with gold rays as a further allusion to the county, the "Sun Parlor of Canada." Around the base of the Crest is a Wreath of the University of Windsor colors, blue and gold, and from this, down on either side of the Helm, flows the mantling of the same colors.

The gold Supporters on either side of the Shield are a Canadian Deer and a Moose, alluding to the Supporters of the Arms of Ontario and the derivation of the university's academic authority and principal financial support from the Provincial Legislature. Complying with the Laws of Arms requiring that no two pairs of Supporters be exactly the same, the University of Windsor's Supporters are reversed from those of Ontario, with the Deer on the viewer's left and the Moose on the right. Further, the head of each Supporter is placed in the position known as "guardant," that is, looking toward the viewer, forward-looking.

The whole composition is placed on a green mound, known in armory as a Compartment, which forms a solid foundation. At the base of the Compartment is the Motto Scroll, inscribed, "BONITATEM, DISCIPLINAM, SCIENTIAM" from Psalm 118 — "Goodness, Discipline and Knowledge."

EDITOR'S CORNER

Ten delegates, representing different alumni chapter areas, will meet in Windsor Saturday, Nov. 7, for a full day's workshop on chapter activities. The project, sponsored by the Alumni Association's board of directors through its standing committee on chapter activities, is being held to assist in the promotion of a strong sense of purpose among alumni chapter executives and chapter members. The delegates will represent London, Montreal, Ottawa, Rochester, N.Y., St. Catharines, Sault Ste. Marie, Sudbury, Toronto, and the University chapter, including both Windsor and Detroit.

Al Roach, '46, second vice-president of the Association and chairman of the standing committee, said the program will run the gamut of chapter affairs, including recruitment, financing, publicity and communications, programming and purposes.

Al says the Nov. 7 workshop is being limited to ten delegates from existing chapters or once-existent chapters, to ensure plentiful exchange of information and ideas during the discussions.

"A larger representation would tend to make the workshop unwieldy," he said. "But our committee remains interested in fostering new chapters and we'd be happy to hear from any alumnus who feels there should be an alumni chapter in his community."

A complete report on the workshop will be carried in the next edition of the Alumni Times. Those who want to contact Al Roach can do so by writing him care of the Alumni Office, University of Windsor, Windsor, Ont.

Homecoming '65 will be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday, February 5, 6, and 7 at the University of Windsor. The Lancers play the Marauders from McMaster University Saturday night, and Athletic Director Dick Moriarty says the McMaster quintet should be among the top three contenders for the O.Q.A.A. basketball crown this year. Jim Kennedy, '59, who was re-appointed chairman of Homecoming after his successful job last February, has more information in a letter enclosed with this mailing.

Capital Campaign Over Top

The University of Windsor's five-year development fund campaign has exceeded its revised goal of $3,950,000 by several thousand dollars, with more donations still trickling in. Final estimates of the total raised will probably not be available for several months.

The alumni division of the campaign exceeded its goal of $60,000, but because more than 200 alumni gave through other campaign divisions, a final total of alumni pledges will not be available for some time.

The 347 alumni who gave directly through the alumni division of the campaign had, by Oct. 1, pledged more than $63,000.

Pledges not yet credited to the alumni division should exceed $30,000.

Thus, alumni estimate their total giving will exceed $95,000.

Arthur B. Weingarden, president of the Alumni Association, said he was exceptionally pleased with the response by alumni.

"The result of the campaign among alumni is a tribute not only to the new University of Windsor but to Father LeBel, its first president, and to Dr. Leddy, who was just installed as its second president," Mr. Weingarden said.

"It is also a tribute to the hard work of more than 100 alumni canvassers and to its general chairman, His Honour Judge Lawrence A. Deziel, Q.C., whose tireless efforts to organize and see the campaign through to success are much appreciated by all of us," Mr. Weingarden said.

Judge Deziel's committee consisted of: Charles W. Donaldson, Q.C., general vice-chairman and chairman of the Essex County division; Joseph L. Arpin, chairman of the U.S.A. division; Michael L. Doyle, Q.C., chairman of the Toronto division; and Mr. Weingarden, chairman of the Ontario division.

The campaign's original goal of $3,505,000 was revised during the summer to $3,950,000, largely because donations from the employees' division were far exceeding expectations.

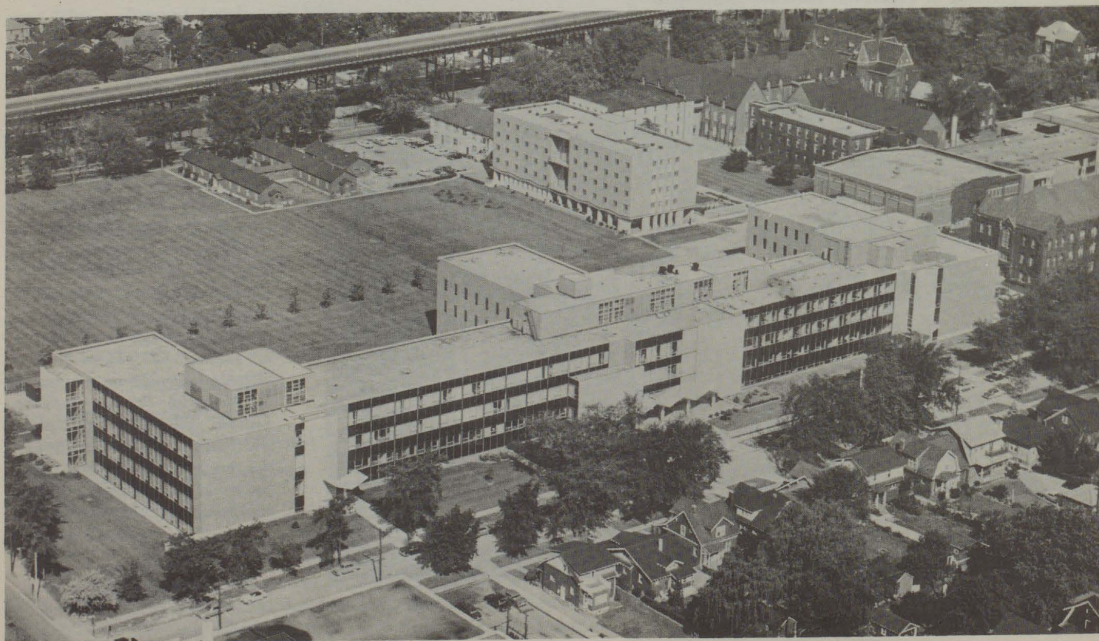

To date, the employees' division has raised more than 99 per cent of its original goal of $430,000, and it is expected the final figures will show that division over the $1,000,000 mark.

Tenders will be called soon for construction of a Biology building to be built on the east side of Patricia Road opposite the recently-completed Physical and Applied Sciences building. This sketch is by Giffels Associates Limited, architects. Just visible at left is the Administration tower, which is expected to be opened in January or February. The biological sciences are now taught in Memorial Science building, between Dillon Hall and University Library. Plans also call for the removal of the present greenhouses and construction of new ones adjacent to the new building.

Some idea of the physical expansion at the University of Windsor is gleaned from these two aerial photographs, taken this summer by Windsor photographer, Eric Jahn. Above, at left foreground, is the Physical and Applied Sciences building, officially opened Oct. 24. To its right, and in ascending order, are: Dillon Hall, Memorial Science, University Library, and, across University Avenue, Electa Hall women's residence. At right middle-ground is the steel structure for the administration and classroom building, expected to be opened this January. Below is a close-up of the Physical and Applied Sciences building. The L-shaped wing to the right of the main entrance was completed in June and houses the chemistry and physics departments. The remaining wings house the mathematics and engineering departments.

'53 Alumnus Joins Catholic Lay Movement

W. Gerald McGuire, who received his bachelor of arts degree from Assumption in 1953, has given up his position of general manager, Chevrolet division, General Motors, Parkersburg, West Virginia, to enrol in the Institute of Lay Theology in San Francisco.

For the next year, he must support his wife and four children, pay out $800 in tuition and between $300 and $600 for a theological library, and put in more than 1,100 hours of class and laboratory training. For this he receives no pay. Once his training is completed, he will be assigned to two parishes in western United States as an inquiry forum director and will be paid a total of about $500 a month by the two parishes.

The Institute of Lay Theology was founded in 1960 by Rev. Eugene Zimmer, S.J., to train Roman Catholic laymen to become salaried inquiry forum directors and project modern Catholic viewpoints.

The primary duty of the inquiry forum director is to organize lecture series at which he explains the Catholic faith to the uncommitted who desire a way of life; to the committed non-Catholics who desire a better understanding of the beliefs of their Catholic friends; and to Catholics who seek a deeper understanding of their faith.

Applicants for the Institute undergo tough psychological screening. "ILT doesn't want the 'Holy Joe' or the frustrated fellow who has left the seminary and hasn't found the world his 'oyster,'" a description says.

"ILT desires the hard-hitting and pragmatic fellow who can adapt himself to the pastor's 'theological stance', and who is articulate, aggressive, resourceful, diplomatic and has a concept of organization."

In the first year of operation, the Institute received sixty applications and accepted only seven.

A recent report on the success of the Institute's program reads:

"Thirty graduates of the Institute of Lay Theology, working in fourteen Western dioceses, have conducted 190 inquiry forums over a two-and-a-half year period, have a total of 1,912 conversions and have reclaimed 752 lapsed Catholics."

Mr. McGuire is shown with his wife, Jean, and their four children.

A further research grant of $57,000 has been awarded by the U.S. Air Force Office of Scientific Research to Dr. Lucjan Krause, head, physics department, to continue until 1967 the research on optical pumping in alkali metal vapours he has been conducting since 1962. The total amount now awarded by the U.S. Air Force for this project is $145,000. The research group associated with the project includes Dr. A. G. A. Rae, research associate; Dr. M. Czajkowski, on a post-doctorate fellowship from Nicholas Copernicus University, Poland; Dr. R. W. Seiwert, who spent part of the summer on leave from Berlin, and five graduate students proceeding to M.Sc. and Ph.D. degrees.

William A. Cowan, Q.C., chairman of the board of Iona College, has been elected representative of the college on the board of governors of the University of Windsor. Born in Port Arthur, Ont., Mr. Cowan received his B.A. from the University of Toronto, served with the Royal Canadian Artillery from 1941 to 1945 with the rank of Captain, graduated from Osgoode Hall in 1948, and was appointed a Q.C. in 1960. He is a member of the law firm of Martin, Laird, Easton, Cowan and Chauvin.

Dr. H. P. Herbach, head, civil engineering department, has been elected a member of the Institution of Civil Engineers, London, England.

Rev. Dr. F. J. Boland, C.S.B., director, Canadian-American Relations Seminar, has been appointed to the educational section of the advisory committee of the Detroit Economic Club.

Dr. J. Gordon Parr, dean of applied science, has been appointed chairman of the education committee of the American Society for Metals and ex-officio member of the society's Education and Development Council. The appointment, effective Oct. 4, is for a one-year term.

Dr. J. Francis Leddy Installed A

Dr. John Francis Leddy was officially installed as second president of the University of Windsor at a special convocation Sept. 24 on the terrace of University Centre.

Hundreds of dignitaries, including representatives of more than 50 universities and colleges and fourteen learned societies paid tribute to the new president during the convocation and at the official reception and dinner that evening.

Dr. Claude T. Bissell, president of the University of Toronto, who gave the convocation address, said, in part:

"I speak for my fellow presidents in Ontario when I say that we are delighted to welcome Francis Leddy to our councils. He will bring to them a wisdom and a balance of judgment nurtured in the classics, developed by years of experience, and rendered doubly effective by the grace of language and revealing flash of wit."

Hon. Paul Martin, Canadian minister of external affairs, who brought greetings from the federal government, said in part:

"Francis Leddy is a man of great quality who has, over the years, achieved an outstanding record of community and public service in Canada. The honours which he has received, the offices which he has occupied with distinction, and the works which he has written, bear eloquent testimony to his great ability.

"Under the leadership of your new president, this University will move forward to continue to play an ever increasing role in helping to shape the destiny of this community and Canada."

Hon. John P. Robarts, premier of Ontario and guest speaker at the official dinner following convocation, said

Dr. Leddy's installation marks a significant point in the organization and development of the University of Windsor that will permit it to meet new challenges and the opportunities inherent in the contemplated growth and expansion of the University.

"The appointment of Dr. Leddy, who has a national and international reputation in the academic field and who is also well known as an administrator, ensures that the stature of the University will not only be continued at the high level it has attained but also that it will be enhanced as the years go by."

Most speakers during the afternoon and evening ceremonies referred to the "unexcelled" service and devotion of the Basilian Fathers to further education in the Windsor area. Dr. Leddy, Dr. Bissell and Premier Robarts praised the work of all Basilian Fathers and signalled out Father LeBel.

Premier Robarts said:

"Father LeBel has displayed leadership, vision and an ability to recognize and analyze differing viewpoints, and his willingness to find the compromise which all could accept and work together with are responsible in large part for the establishment of the new University of Windsor and the progress it has made thus far."

Arthur B. Weingarden, president of the University of Windsor Alumni Association, said in part:

"Although most of the alumni of the University of Windsor were graduated from either Assumption College or Assumption University, I am certain I can assure their whole-hearted support for you and for the University of Windsor.

University of Windsor President

In his address to Convocation, Dr. Leddy expressed his thanks for the congratulatory messages from Hon. Paul Martin, Canada's minister of external affairs; Clifford Hatch, vice-chairman, board of governors; Dr. Frank A. DeMarco, vice-president of the University; Richard Burkhart, president, students' administrative council; and Arthur B. Weingarden, president, alumni association.

He acknowledged the messages of good wishes from Dr. G. Edward Hall, president of the University of Western Ontario, representing the Association of Commonwealth Universities; Dr. James A. Corry, principal, Queen's University, and vice-president, National Conference of Canadian Universities and Colleges; and Dr. Claude T. Bissell, president, University of Toronto, who gave the Convocation address.

Dr. Leddy recalled his "permanent obligation" to his late father and to his mother, who was present for the installation ceremonies; to his wife; and to the University of Saskatchewan, where he spent more than thirty years, as a student, a member of the faculty, and, later, academic vice-president.

The educator has a special responsibility to clarify in his own mind what are his vital beliefs about the essential question which precedes all others and which confronts every thoughtful person whenever he dips beneath the surface of routine, and that question is—what is man? Until the educator has reflected constructively on this question he cannot go on to determine the answer he should give to the next challenge which is inevitable: what is the purpose of education?

It will not surprise you to be told that I adhere firmly to that answer which is embedded in the long tradition of the classical and Christian centuries and which, in spite of attack and rejection in some quarters, has been reinforced in modern times. In this view man is acknowledged to be a creature endowed with a dignity of his own as an individual, with a mind having a capacity and a desire to know the truth, and with a will free to act, in spite of the pressure of emotions, and with a responsibility to do so. These are not simply the teaching of ancient philosophers and of medieval theologians, they are the almost instinctive beliefs of men in every age and in all parts of the world, both those within the intellectual traditions of the West and, in recent times, those still largely untouched by them in Africa and Asia. This was revealed in a striking way in that remarkable document, the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, issued in 1948 by the United Nations, from which I quote several typical passages:

"Article 1: All human beings are born free and equal in dignity and rights. They are endowed with reason and conscience and should act towards one another in a spirit of brotherhood.

"Article 26: Everyone has a right to education.

Article 29: Everyone has duties to the community in which alone the free and full development of his personality is possible."

The beliefs expressed in these simple formulations have been long familiar to us and are the foundation of our educational system and much else as well in Canada today. Abandon any significant part of them and immediate deterioration will result in practice, however lofty your intentions may be. Reject the dignity of the individual, as do some totalitarian countries, and education quickly degenerates into indoctrination; manifest doubt about our ability to get at the truth, as do some fashionable philosophers, and you undermine our drive to discover, the key to modern advance in science; declare the will to be in chains, responding automatically to overriding pressures, and you introduce chaotic irresponsibility, relieving the individual of any obligation to strive for good conduct.

It is the honorable task of the Canadian university more than any other institution in this country to exemplify in theory and practice, in a conscious and deliberate way, the positive ideals implied in these declarations and to stand against their neglect or denial.

The University of Windsor by the words of its motto, "goodness, discipline and knowledge", could hardly be more precise in relating its main purpose to the great tradition which I have been describing. It shall be my effort that it may continue to do so, not only in the sense of going back to old principles but also in the spirit of starting out from them.

As it does, this University will not be operating in a vacuum or as a new creation but within an unusual community, in which it has long ago let down strong roots. This part of our country has a bright history of its own, reflecting in miniature the story of all Canada. Several centuries ago only a few Indians and the first settlers went their unhurried way on the quiet waters and along the silent forest trails of this region. If they were to return today to their old pathways, they would find two of them now known to us as Highways 3 and 18, hardly safe territory for even a disembodied spirit to haunt. And this contrast of the centuries is typical of

Following the short oath-of-office ceremony, during which he promised to "perform the duties of the president of the University of Windsor as prescribed by law and by the standards of the University," Dr. Leddy received the gown of office. the dramatic transformation which has come upon this area, especially in our life time, illustrated by the soaring skyline of Detroit, the vaulting bridge, and the population of Windsor which has tripled in a few decades.

At first that development was so slow and moderate that at the end of a full century of settlement, by the mid-point of the nineteenth century, there were scarcely one thousand people in the Windsor area and fifty thousand in Detroit. But within a few years the arrival of the railroad permitted a large influx of immigrants to reach Essex County easily, and soon thereafter, in 1858, the village of Windsor became a town, but by that time our own story had already begun with the establishment of Assumption College in 1857. These were the days of the pathetic dramas of the Underground Railroad, so called, which brought hundreds of wretched American slaves fleeing into this very part of Canada, the time of the threats of border trouble during the American Civil War and its immediate aftermath, the Fenian Raids, all events which touched the lives of the students in the small college. On one occasion their first building, still standing a few feet from us, was taken over by soldiers who had hastily arrived in 1866 to repel the rumoured invasion, and there is still in existence a delightful photograph of these soldiers clustered about the building, with a few of them even standing on the roof, in an attitude of fearsome military defiance, never, as it happened, put to the test.

It would seem that for Windsor the stirring events of the fifties and sixties of the last century set a pattern which was to recur again and again and finally to assume a fixed character: the prompt and generous acceptance of refugees and immigrants from other lands, the sincere cooperation of diverse racial and religious groups in community causes, and a keen and friendly interest in American affairs, natural in the one city in Canada immediately adjacent to an American metropolis.

Assumption College, later Assumption University of Windsor, reflected to the full these currents of opinion and outlook, attracting a varied student body which was usually fifty percent non-Catholic and about twelve percent American. Ultimately in a transition unique in Canadian academic history it evolved into the new non-denominational University of Windsor, an outcome only possible in an atmosphere dominated by generous goodwill. I do not suggest that the people of Windsor have attained such a state of perfected amiability that they will all slip smoothly into Heaven with the same perfunctory immigration inspection that they now receive coming from and going to Detroit. I merely insist that the spirit of this community is characterized to a unique degree by an awareness that pettiness and prejudice defeat themselves, that the stale ill will of quarrels in bygone centuries and other continents has no place in this green and pleasant land.

The University of Windsor is both the product of that outlook and a major source of it. Its story has been often told in recent months and need not be reviewed again, but I would be unjust if I did not pay special tribute to the long service of the Basilian Fathers, over more than a century, at great personal and material cost, providing a college and university education which would otherwise not have been available in Windsor. Many of them were and are fine scholars and doughty personalities, making a lasting impression on their students, and I am tempted to single out certain of my particular favorites among them, but I limit myself to one name only, my remarkable predecessor, Father LeBel. To those who knew him no praise is necessary, to those who never met him no account of his work can be altogether adequate unless it conveys the large spirit in which he worked and to which so many others were eager to respond. He has deserved well of Windsor and of Canada.

While we are proud of the past, and much taken up with the problems of the present, we do have large plans for the future. This year we have completed one new building, we have another well under way, and a third ready for tender. It is probable that this will be our situation each successive year for many years to come as our enrolment steadily increases. The noisy commotion of machinery will be with us without relief as we brush away the dust and scrape away the mud of excavations and landscaping, and this will be the common story of the other universities across Canada.

There is something encouraging about new construction on a university campus, a visible sign of growth and progress, particularly when it is well planned with some architectural distinction. It is right that we should take some trouble over our university buildings if we do value the work to be done in them, but there is always some danger that we may end with excessive emphasis on these externals, diverting a disproportionate amount of the time of our staff to these fascinating material problems, to the temporary neglect of their primary business, the effective conduct of their academic work. Against such a possibility some vigilance may be required on behalf of the quality of our teaching and research. Further, there must be a ceaseless concern for the overall atmosphere or spirit of the university, and to the largeness of the dimension in which it sets its objectives.

Here I recall that there have been periods when once great and flourishing universities have fallen into complacent stagnation, outside the mainstream of national life, satisfied with a narrow and limited range of interests. I find it significant on the other hand that the impressive periods of university achievement and vitality have invariably coincided with their widest display of internationalism. A university which draws its students and its staff from many countries and from varied cultures has in that fact alone a defence against undue self-satisfaction on regional or national grounds. The interplay of opinion, the salutary shock of the unfamiliar, and the sympathetic realization of the common factor are among the most useful educational experiences for students fortunate enough to attend a true university, one which takes them out of themselves, gives them a glimpse at least of other ages and other countries, and does it in the most direct and effective way, in the daily association with students and professors from abroad.

Everything which promotes such a situation ministers to the true welfare of our universities, and so I recall with special satisfaction that circumstances have allowed me to participate fully in the work of World University Service of Canada, and Canadian University Service Overseas, (Canada's unofficial "peace corps"). In both organizations professors and students take an equal part, and through them every university in Canada may establish a helpful connection with students, schools and universities abroad. As their names imply, they seek to promote unselfish international cooperation, and they have been well supported at the University of Windsor, not surprising since we have a larger percentage of foreign students on this campus than any other Canadian university, and the same claim could probably be made for the non-Canadian proportion of our teaching staff. Both facts augur well for continuing vitality and relevance in a new age of internationalism, and constitute a valuable inheritance for the University of Windsor at the outset of a significant stage in its evolution.

It is well that this should be so, for the modern world is not only full of fascinating wonders to enthrall the imagination and to stimulate the mind. It is also heavy with the menace of universal destruction, a practical possibility for the first time in history. A few days ago Mr. Khrushchev was reported to have boasted that his scientists had a new weapon capable of destroying the world. Subsequently there was some dispute about his actual declaration, rather excusable since he was speaking in Russian to Japanese who reported his interview in English, not exactly the three easiest language hurdles in the world. But what was significant about the episode was the fact that in many Canadian papers it was given no greater prominence than several other stories of the day and that it aroused little interest or subsequent reaction. Many readers evidently felt that if the claim was not yet true, it soon would be, if not for Russian inventors then for the scientists of some other country. The possibility of such global disaster is now conceded, and is a chill prospect we have come to live with, pushing it down beneath the normal level of conscious concern—at least, some of us have done so, but I would doubt whether this is equally true for many of our thoughtful and sensitive young people.

In thus coming back to the individual, after attention to basic principles and large issues, I am acknowledging the realities of the daily round, for life must go on and morbid brooding will not help us. And against this background what of the young men and women in our universities seeking to come to terms with the modern world, not as in other ages in a comfortable and leisurely way, but under the dark shadow of ultimate possibilities beyond imagination?

There is no soft or easy answer, but there is one, if my argument is valid, since if man has a dignity, and a worth of his own, and if he has a mind which can rise to the truth, if he is by nature entrusted with an obligation to serve others, then he is not the weak pawn of fate and the mere victim of brutal circumstance. He can withstand, alone or in company, cruel pressures and triumph over them, he can restore what others have destroyed, and reverse the strong currents set in motion by wicked or foolish men. But he cannot do any of these things if he does not understand himself, if he misjudges the human condition or loses his courage.

It is reassuring for all of us that, in an age when many things have gone badly, they have at least gone well in our Canadian universities. In them our students are situated to their advantage, set upon the right way and the high road, with their immediate prospects favourable, and with a more remote future which may indeed prove to be uncertain and formidable, but which, even so, should yield to their best qualities of heart and mind.

Drawing upon these sources of confidence, I have the strong conviction that ultimately all will be well with us, and that if we are firm in our faith and sincere in our charity then we are entitled to such hope. And if happily events do turn out well in this country, it will be in no small part because the universities of Canada have played their proper role, promoting, as the University of Windsor seeks to do, "goodness, discipline and knowledge".

Among the many telegrams Dr. Leddy received on the day of his installation as president of the University of Windsor was this:

"It is only fitting that the years of dedication you have given to higher education in Canada and abroad should be crowned by your installation as president and vice-chancellor in a growing university still capable of being molded to greatness under your scholarly direction."

"God bless you and the University of Windsor. This is the prayer of us at St. Mark's College, Vancouver."

Placement Office Reports Opening

Attractive personnel positions with the Treasury Board have just been reported to the Alumni office. The immediate duties are the carrying-out of continuing studies and the making of recommendations to the Treasury Board on various aspects of personnel management. The most important of these aspects are Salary Administration, Fringe Benefit Determination, Evaluation of Classification Plans and Critical Appreciation of the Utilization and Development of Personnel. Included in their duties are responsibilities for added items of compensation in the form of Isolation, Foreign and Representational Allowances and Provision of Accommodation.

Because these officers will occupy a central position their advice will be frequently sought by departmental authorities and they will be called upon to represent the Treasury Board on important committees where Personnel Administration is a matter of prime interest.

The applicant should have the potentiality to develop a general capacity to recognize goals and problems of public administration rather than acquisition of detailed knowledge of its technicalities. He should be able to deal effectively with senior departmental officials and ranking officers of employee organizations. Those thoroughly proficient in both English and French would be of particular interest.

Likely candidates will have studied in the fields of Social Science, Industrial Relations, Law or Economics and will have shown a notable degree of success in their academic training. There may be others, however, who have based a successful training and experience in personnel work, including Industrial Relations, on a pass Arts degree. These too are to be considered. Salary range for present vacancies is from $9,000 to $10,700.

Alumni wishing further information concerning these vacancies are requested to contact the NES Student Placement Officer at the University of Windsor, or, if more convenient, the nearest NES-E&P Central Office.

Contribution Will Establish Materials Science Program

A gift of $55,000 from Dominion Forge Foundation, Windsor, to the Development Fund of the University of Windsor will be used to buy laboratory equipment to establish a program of studies in materials science.

The program, to be conducted on both the undergraduate and graduate levels, is a comparatively new discipline which seeks to link the study of the nature of materials (pure science) to their fit usage (engineering). It will be inter-disciplinary, with the laboratory being used by the five engineering departments and the physics, chemistry and mathematics departments.

Dr. J. Gordon Parr, dean of applied science and a metallurgist whose research has taken him into the study of materials science, said a realization among scientists in the last few years that there is a lack of knowledge about materials for use in engineering brought about the development of the new discipline.

"Engineers may be able to design structures and machines, but they do not always have at their disposal the materials which they wish to design into them," Dr. Parr said.

Some of the problems for study in materials science include: the production of strong, stable plastics; the production of steel that will not deflect as much as contemporary steel under the same stress; the production of ceramics that are hard but not brittle; and the economic production, by powder metallurgical methods, of intricate shapes.

Dr. Parr said the development of the materials science discipline is especially pertinent to Canada.

"Canada exports many of her natural resources as raw material or semi-finished goods," Dr. Parr said. "But a sounder economy is based upon the production of finished articles and the success of such production depends upon developing new engineering materials and upon a better understanding of existing materials."

"It is hoped that the curricula will encourage the education of young men who have both a comprehensive appreciation of materials as well as special knowledge in metals, ceramics or plastics," Dr. Parr added.

Included among the laboratory equipment to be purchased are: a high-frequency generator, which will make pure metals and alloys; X-ray diffraction equipment, to determine the atomic arrangements within solids; a precision tensile testing machine, which allows the examination of the behaviour of metals under stress; and a microhardness tester, which aids in the determination of the properties of the microconstituents of materials.

The new equipment will supplement existing equipment at the university in the development of the new program.

U. of W. Holds Fall Convocation: 125 Graduate

Honorary doctoral degrees were conferred upon two Canadian scientists and a provincial labour officer at the fall convocation of the University of Windsor on October 24.

Receiving an honorary doctor of laws degree was Louis Fine, chief conciliation officer of the department of labour for Ontario.

Dr. Clifford B. Purves, D.Sc., F.R.S.C., chairman of the department of chemistry of McGill University and Dr. Harry L. Welsh, F.R.S.C., F.R.S., head of the department of physics of the University of Toronto were presented with honorary doctor of science degrees.

Chairmen and heads of chemistry and physics departments in several universities in Canada and the United States as well as representatives of professional and academic societies attended convocation ceremonies and remained for the reception and tour of the new chemistry and physics laboratories of Physical and Applied Science Building.

Dr. Frederick T. Rosser, Ph.D., LL.D., vice-president of administration, National Research Council of Canada, was principal speaker at a dinner in the University Centre in the evening.

Dr. Purves, a former president of the Chemical Institute of Canada and a Fellow of the Royal Society of Canada, was convocation speaker.

University Chapter Meets Saturday, November Seventh

The University Chapter of the Alumni Association will hold its first meeting of the season Saturday, Nov. 7, in the Faculty-Alumni Lounge of University Centre.

President Michael Daypuk said plans have been confirmed for a semi-formal cocktail party at which guests of honour will be Dr. and Mrs. J. Francis Leddy.

"Facilities at the University Centre that evening limit the number who can attend to about 150," Mr. Daypuk said. "Because of this, the chapter executive has had to ask those attending to make reservations."

Mr. Daypuk said non-alumni wives or husbands of alumni are invited to attend. "This principle applies to all our meetings," he added. There is no admittance charge for the reception.

The chapter executive is also planning meetings for December, March and May, with the annual meeting and election of officers to be set in the New Year.

February meeting will be taken up by Homecoming, which is being held Feb. 5, 6, and 7. In March, tentative plans have been made for a fashion show. The Alumni Ball will be held in mid-May.

Athletic Expansion Built On Firm Past

By RICHARD MORIARTY, Athletic Director

In the fall of 1952 Assumption College joined the Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association — launching the Windsor school on a new athletic tradition truly Canadian University oriented. Prior to that date, the core of Assumption competition was found in Canadian Senior Men's play and in U.S. colleges.

The O.-Q.A.A. is the oldest, toughest, and biggest league in Canada—dating back to the turn of the century. Today it encompasses ten schools—Toronto, Western Ontario, Queen's, McGill, Montreal, Laval, Guelph, Waterloo, McMaster, and the University of Windsor. The calibre of O.-Q.A.A. play has been manifest on many occasions in the past but is nowhere better reflected than in Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union competition, where O.-Q.A.A. teams have captured four of five team titles. The Lancers captured the 1st and 2nd annual C.I.A.U. national basketball championships in 1962 and 1963, McMaster captured the hockey in 1962, Toronto captured Harrier in 1963. The University of Alberta captured the Hockey Championship in 1963 and even here the defeat was tainted since the University of Montreal, who placed second in the O.-Q.A.A., represented the first-place Toronto team which was unavailable due to an examination conflict.

Most alumni are familiar with the role Assumption and later Windsor has played in intercollegiate basketball: the Purple Raider co-Championship with Western in 1953-54, the Assumption University Lancer co-Championship with Queen's in 1955-56, a sole Championship in 1958-59 and finally the O.-Q.A.A. and C.I.A.U. Championships in 1962-63 and 1963-64. As the British Columbia Sun said in their sports editorial on Monday, March 17, 1963, "Only the name changes, the basketball tradition and power of the Windsor school remains the same".

While the basketball tradition of the Lancers is well known nationally, few people realize that over the past twelve years Windsor has been a significant competitor in numerous other O.-Q.A.A. athletic activities. During this era Windsor athletes have compiled an enviable record of Individual and Team Honours in the O.-Q.A.A. and also in the Ontario Intercollegiate Athletic Association (O.I.A.A.) where they have playing privileges.

Golf is an excellent example of the prominence of University of Windsor athletes. In 1955-56 Mike Saffran was Low Medallist in the old O.-Q.A.A. Intermediate League. In 1960-61 Jim Cushing of Sudbury captured the O.I.A.A. individual title and led his teammates—Ed Dixon, Terry Diatchenko, and Dean Morrison to the O.I.A.A. team championship. Harvey (Butch) Barsanti became the first University of Windsor athlete to capture a Gold Medal, winning the individual championship at the O.-Q.A.A. Senior Intercollegiate Championship held at Beach Grove Golf & Country Club in the fall of 1963. In the current season John Mickle captured a share of the O.I.A.A. Individual Championship and combined with teammates Mike Kane, Harry Hands and Butch Barsanti to share in the O.I.A.A. team championship. The Lancer team made their best finish in O.-Q.A.A. competition this year, finishing second, just six strokes off the pace set by McMaster. John Mickle was runnerup low medallist and became the first Windsor athlete to win a Silver Medal in golf.

Badminton is another sport in which Windsor athletes have achieved prominence. Eric Pertsch, fourth year Engineering student, captured the O.I.A.A. and O.-Q.A.A. individual championships the past two years. Pertsch has combined with Roland Herbst, Richard Dupuis and Dave Powell for O.I.A.A. team honours during this same period. In 1958-59, Al Massey of Sudbury captured the O.I.A.A. Singles Championship.

Great strides have been made in track and field under coaches Archie Green and Bob Samaras. The Lancer track team won its first track meet this season on Saturday, October 10, defeating teams from Aquinas College of Grand Rapids, Michigan, and Oakland University, of Rochester, Michigan. Outstanding individual performances had been turned in over the years including first place in the 100 and 220 by Paul Falardeau in 1956-57 in the old O.-Q.A.A. Intermediate League, first place finish in the 120 yard high hurdles by Don Cole in 1958-59, a record for the Pole Vault of 11'6" by Bob Moore in the O.I.A.A. in 1961-62. Record shattering performances in the O.I.A.A. Meet in 1962 included—10 flat in the 100 Yard by Charles MacMillan, 1st's in the 440 by Paul Allen and a quarter mile relay record for Paul Allen, Bob McNichol, and Claude and Charles MacMillan. The Lancers finished second, just 6 points out of 1st in this meet.

Windsor teams have also been competing in Tennis where Terry Fahlenbock finished second for a silver medal in competition during the current season; Judo, where Larry Liebrock won the junior championship in 1961 and again in 1962. Windsor has also participated in curling and sailing.

This current season will see the initiation of swimming and hockey on a full time intercollegiate basis, and intercollegiate competition in fencing and archery for the first time. The swimming team, coached by Mr. Nicholas Grabowski, will participate in dual meets with Calvin College, Oakland University, Henry Ford Community College, Schoolcraft College and Detroit Institute of Technology, and will also participate in the Annual O.I.A.A. and O.-Q.A.A. Swimming Meets.

For the most part this expansion of the Intercollegiate program has been closely allied with the development of the interfaculty sports and extramural athletics at the University of Windsor. The Interfaculty Program, through the efforts of the Men's and Women's Athletic Councils, has seen tremend-

Dr. J. F. Leddy, president, University of Windsor, was elected vice-president of World University Service at the biennial meeting he attended in Lund, Sweden. Chairman of W.U.S. of Canada for the last three years, Dr. Leddy will hold his new international post for two years.

Hon. J. Keiller Mackay, chancellor, has accepted an appointment to the Advisory Council of the International Movement for Atlantic Union. The council, part of a movement "to speed Atlantic federation by mobilization of leaders who believe in trying to achieve this in time to prevent catastrophe," is made up of 650 members, including 32 Americans and Canadians.

Construction has begun on a $570,000 Basilian House of Studies on Riverside Drive immediately west of Ambassador Bridge. Being built by the Basilian Fathers of Toronto, the structure will provide a residence for 57 seminarians and five priests and will include music and craft rooms, reading rooms, a large classroom and library combined, a chapel and a small gymnasium. There are currently 23 seminarians housed in St. Basil's Hall, located between University Centre and the administration building. Next year it will become a residence for a group of sisters attending the University of Windsor.

Appointment of A. S. Harrison, former director of purchasing for Ford Motor Company of Canada Ltd., who retired July 31, as secretary of the Corporation and of the Board of Governors of the University of Windsor is announced by Dr. J. F. Leddy, president. Robert Nairn, B.A., secretary-treasurer, remains as treasurer and chief financial officer. Mr. Harrison will also assist the president in the finalization of the Development Fund.

Dr. J. E. Callagan has been appointed to the part-time faculty of the Centre of Criminology, University of Toronto, for the 1964-65 academic year.

Changes of titles within the student affairs department have been announced by the Senate: Herbert Wilshire, M.S., director of student affairs, becomes dean of students; Miss Evelyn McLean, B.A., director of student affairs (women), becomes dean of women; and R. Paul Gilmor, M.A., director of student affairs (men), becomes dean of men.

The University of Windsor has been unanimously elected to the International Association of Universities, Dr. Cyril James, association president, has advised.

Dr. Maurice Adelman, recently elected vice-president of the Association of the Chemical Profession of Ontario, has also been elected a Fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Dr. Itrat-Husain Zuberi, professor of English, has returned to campus following the summer in England where he worked at the Bodleian Library, Oxford, on his definitive edition of John Donne's "Biathanatos", which has been accepted for publication by Archives Internationales D'Histoire Des Idees, Paris, France.

Ken Daigle, formerly with Vendomatic Services Ltd. at McGill University, has replaced Rene M. Vandervelde as manager of Vendomatic Services for the University of Windsor. Mr. Vandervelde has registered for the M.B.A. course at the University of Windsor.

A textbook, entitled "Basic Statistical Methods for Engineers and Scientists," just published by International Textbook Co., Scranton, Penn., was co-authored by Dr. John B. Athletic Expansion ous growth in the number of sports offered, the calibre of competition and the organization of leagues. The Interfaculty Program has grown from four sports in 1952 to 21 during the current year for men, and from 3 to 13 for women.

Several factors make the Windsor Interfaculty Program distinct. The University of Windsor alumni take part in the athletic programme by providing coaches for various sports and by providing competition for various teams. Championship interfaculty teams and all-star teams also participate in the International Extramural Conference against representatives from the Detroit, Wayne State, Oakland and other Michigan schools. Extramural competition has proved an excellent stepping stone and testing ground to prove genuine interest and sufficient calibre of competition for intercollegiate status.

The intercollegiate athletic program is developing along with the size of the University but any future accomplishments will be built on the tradition of these firsts in intercollegiate competition and on a solid base of interfaculty competition.
